The Valley of Silence.

The following lines were penned by Father Ryan the author of many choice gems, who is often called "The Poet Priest Soldier" of the South:

I walked down the Valley of Silence,
Down the dim, voiceless valley—alone!
And I hear not the fall of a footstep
Around me—save God's and my own!
And the hush of my heart is as holy
As hovers where Angels have flown.

Long ago was I weary of voices
Whose music my heart could not win;
Long ago was I weary of noises
That fretted my soul with their din;
Long ago was I weary of places
Where I met but the Human, and Sin.

I walked through the world with the worldly:
I craved what the world never gave;
And I said: "In the world, each Ideal,
That shines like a star on life's wave,
Is toned on the shores of the Real,
And sleeps like a dream in a grave."

And still did I pine for the Perfect,
And still found the False with the True;
I sought mid the Human for Heaven,
But caught a mere glimpse of its blue;
And I wept when the clouds of the Mortal
Veiled even that glimpse from my view.

And I toiled on, heart-tired of the Human;
And I moaned 'mid the mazes of men;
Till I knelt long ago at the altar
And heard a Voice call me; since then
I walk down the Valley of Silence
That lies far beyond mortal ken.

Do you ask what I found in the Valley?
I weep, and I dream, and I pray;
But my tears are as sweet as the dew-drops
That fall on the roses in May;
And my prayer, like a perfume from censer,
Ascendeth to God, night and day.

In the hush of the Valley of Silence,
I dreamed all the songs that I sing;
And the music floats down the dim valley,
Till each finds a word for a wing,
That to men, like the dews of the Deluge
The message of Peace they may bring.

But far on the deep there are billows
That never shall break on the beach:
And I have heard songs in the silence
That never shall float into speech;
And I have had dreams in the Valley
Too lofty for language to reach.

And I have seen thoughts in the Valley—
Ah, me! how my spirit was stirred!
And they wear holy veils on their faces—
Their footsteps can scarcely be heard;
They pass through the Valley, like Virgins
Too pure for the touch of a word.

Do you ask me that place of the Valley,
Ye hearts that are harrowed by care?
It lieth afar between mountains,
And God and His Angels are there;
And one is the dark mount of Sorrow
And one the bright mount of Prayer.

WHAT WILL YOU LEAVE BEHIND?—Talking with an old farmer once, he said: "When I die, I am going to leave behind, as a heritage for my children, the home where they were born, made as beautiful as my means and uneducated taste will allow, pleasant memories of the home fireside and of the sunny summer days, and a true regard for the dignity and worthiness of the calling which their father followed." The old man felt such emotion when he talked in this way that he had to use a handkerchief to prevent the tears telling their tale of manly sensitiveness. His boys were widely scattered, having a varied experience in life; but there was not one of them who did not honor the old farmer they called (and reverently, too) "Father;" nor one of them who was not glad to visit the old homestead once a year.

Now, we repeat the question, "What will you leave behind?" Money? It will do your children little good, comparatively. Money is easily obtained, but homes are scarce. The associations which the men of the world value most are the associations with their early homes. No man, no matter what his position, circumstances or relations in life, who has had a happy and pleasant home in his youth, fails to remember, love and long for it. It is the haven he seeks, one toward which his heart goes out whenever he is in trouble; it is the shrine to which he makes pilgrimage whenever he has means and opportunity; it is the one spot on earth upon which he is willing to lavish the wealth he may have acquired, and where he desires to die and be buried.—New Yorker.

THE CALIFORNIA SIDE.—To one coming down the Central Pacific Railroad at this season of the year, from the summit of the Sierras, it is a source of pleasure and amusement to witness the manifestations of wonder and delight, and the outbursts of enthusiasm which mark the conduct of eastern passengers. From Alta to Sacramento the scenery changes momentarily, growing rapidly in beauty and freshness, until the whole earth seems to cry aloud in praise of Spring. The fields are clothed in a velvety coat of green, over which myriads of wild flowers are growing in most glorious colors. Seen from the swiftly passing car the entire surface of the hillside and the plain seem striped and dashed with the most delicate hues and variegated tints. The sky, too, is clear, and the air balmy, as it is only in the Sacramento Valley and along the foothills of the Sierra Nevadas and one soon ceases to wonder at the raptures of travelers, who, but a few hours before, were gazing upon the dull, cheerless plains of Nevada, or shivering in the snows beyond the Rocky Mountains. We do not remember for years to have seen the country looking so splendidly beautiful as at this time, and it deserves all the praise which new comers give it.—Sac. Record.

THE PRESIDENT AND CHARLOTTE CUSHMAN.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Herald is responsible for the following: President Grant expressed a desire a few days ago to see Miss Cushman play her celebrated part of "Meg Merrilies," and was presented with a private box at Wall's Opera House. After the first act Mrs. Grant and two friends made their appearance, but no President, although a wait of several minutes had been made. The play proceeded, and between the second and third acts the President made his appearance, when the orchestra, breaking off in the music they were playing, struck up "Hail to the Chief." Regarding this as an unwarranted interruption of the piece, Miss Cushman became indignant and peremptorily demanded that the orchestra stop its servility and that the play proceed. Her order was obeyed.

THE RED MEN.—The "Improved Order of Red Men" is in Pennsylvania a mammoth organization. There are 162 tribes in the State, comprising 12,792 members. Of these there are 16 Past Grand Sachems, and 1,858 Past Sachems. The deaths in the Order recorded for the past fiscal year are 124; the receipts from all the tribes, $102,332 82. There was paid out of the relief fund $24,641 21 for the benefit of widows and orphans of deceased brothers—making a total of $32,662 21. The Order is strongest in that State, Ohio coming next, then Maryland, California, etc.

The "Atlantic" Calamity.

STATEMENT BY THE QUARTERMASTER.

HALIFAX, April 3—Evening.—There is nothing of importance from the wreck to-day. Robert Thomas, the quartermaster, says:

At two o'clock I went upon the bridge with the second officer, Metcalf, and told him we ought not to stand into land so, as the ship had run her distance to make Sambro Light, from my calculations. He told me that I was neither captain nor mate. I then went to the fourth officer, Brown, and asked him if I should go on the main yard, as he would not see the land until he struck. He told me it was of no use for me to go up. I then relieved the man at the wheel. At 2:20 o'clock the second officer told the captain, who was reposing in the chart-room, that the weather was getting thick. The second officer then went outside of the chart-room. The man at the lookout called "Ice ahead," and shortly after the ship struck. The time was 3:15. I put the helm hard to starboard and reversed the engine, "full speed astern." I left the wheel house and went and got axes and distributed them for the purpose of cutting away the boats.

ACCOUNT OF A BOY SURVIVOR.

HALIFAX, April 3—The only youth saved from the wreck makes the following statement:

My name is John Hinley. I am about twelve years of age. I got on board the Atlantic at Liverpool, with my father, mother and a young brother. We all belong to Ashton, Lancashire. I was asleep in my berth when a great noise awakened me. Although I did not hear any voices, there seemed to be a great rush, and I tumbled out of bed into the crowd. I saw six men crowding into a top berth in the upper steerage, and I followed them. One of the men broke through a window and got out, and I did the same, one kind-hearted individual pushing me through, before I had made the egress myself. Once outside, I held on to the ropes until I and my companions were rescued by a lifeboat. What became of my parents and brother I did not know, but I was certain they were drowned.

The family were on their way to New York, at the kind invitation of two married daughters who had settled there.

FEARFUL SCENES.

HALIFAX, April 3.—Some incidents of the disaster, as related by the survivors, are harrowing. At one time during the weary watch before dawn, the fore boom broke loose from its fastenings, and swinging around, instantly crushed to death about two hundred persons who were gathered on deck.

Several persons are reported as having been drowned from the life-boats, which not being properly managed, overturned, and the unfortunates perished before assistance could be rendered.

Some, who had life-buoys, and who endeavored to reach the rock by means of the line from the vessel, not having them properly adjusted, but on the lower part of their bodies, were floating with their heads down, and in this way many were drowned before reaching the rock. One young man, with no clothing on save a shirt and a vest, and with two life buoys fastened around his body, leaped into the water and attempted to reach the rock. The passengers who gave this statement say they endeavored to dissuade him from the attempt, but he persisted, and when finally they were rescued and landed on shore, the body of the young man was the first they saw, and the life buoys were still on his body.

Among the passengers was a native of the old country, who had been in the United States for some time, and lately returned to England to bring out his wife and five children to his home in the New World. The father, mother and children all perished.

Several of the passengers who landed from the steamer Delta yesterday were considerably bruised about their bodies and lower limbs. One man had both legs broken, and others were so sore from being knocked against the rocks, that they were not able to stand. Three or four had to be sent to the hospital.

The survivors say it was a frightful sight to witness the manner in which many of the unfortunate persons met their death. Unable to reach the deck, in consequence of the jam in the gangway, several persons escaped thro' the port-holes, only to be dashed to death against the sides of the ship.

A RUFFIAN CREW.

HALIFAX, April 3.—The Atlantic's crew are reported to have been one of the hardest ever gathered together in any vessel. They were picked up about the Liverpool wharves and docks, and it was with the greatest difficulty that they were kept under control during the voyage. The storekeeper states that one of them made an attempt to snatch his watch chain one night, but was foiled. On another occasion, during a severe storm, on the 25th of March, he states that some of the crew attempted to break into the spirit room, and it was for awhile feared that force would have to be used to prevent them from doing so. When the boats came from shore to rescue the survivors, the sailors repeatedly pushed the passengers aside, or knocked them down, and jumped into the boats themselves.

THE SURVIVORS WELL CARED FOR.

HALIFAX, April 3.—Every care and attention has been bestowed upon the survivors since their arrival here, by the Marine Department, the city authorities, the Cunard Company, and private citizens, many of whom have cheerfully contributed for the relief of the distressed passengers and seamen.

WRECKERS FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, April 3.—The Underwriters of New York have dispatched a wrecker with divers and full instructions, to Halifax, to take charge of the wrecked steamer Atlantic, and endeavor to save the vessel and cargo, and to make all possible provisions for saving and preserving the dead bodies. The Coast Wrecking Company dispatched a steamer to-day with a full wrecking company, to carry out this object. A dispatch from Halifax states that the Atlantic is broken at the foremast.

THE LATEST.

HALIFAX, April 3.—Capt. Williams has returned to the scene of the wreck to look after the property. Hopes are entertained that the greater portion of the cargo will be saved. The vessel is still in the same position, with her bow and masts out of water.

Statements are made that the crew indulged in plundering from the dead bodies. An instance is related of a wretch who mutilated the hand of a lady to obtain possession of a diamond ring which was on her finger.

The bodies of Mrs. Fisher, of Vermont, and Miss Merritt, of Chicago, washed ashore yesterday, and lay side by side among eight others. Their bodies will be forwarded to their respective homes.

One woman passenger was confined only six hours before the disaster occurred.

Two men who where reported saved but that their names where unknown have arrived here. They are James Bateman, of London, and Edward Mills, of Belfast. Bateman was the only one who succeeded in getting his wife up in the rigging, where she died from exposure.

It is not true that the Collector of Customs here has been ordered to hold an investigation. None of the officers or men are detained in custody to give evidence. A statement was made in the evening papers to that effect, but it is authoritatively denied by Collector McDonald.

PORTLAND (Me.), April 3.—A dispatch to Captain Coyle says all the Atlantic's passengers will leave Halifax at nine o'clock to-night in the Falmouth, arriving here at midnight on Friday, and hence will be conveyed by the Eastern Railroad to Boston, and the Fall River line to New York.

A THOUSAND SHOTS A MINUTE.—Yesterday, at Holskie's machine shop, corner of Cherry and Jefferson streets, a trial was made of a new mitrailleur, invented by Mr. J. P. Taylor, of Tennessee. This most destructive implement of modern warfare has quite a number of novel features, which distinguish it from the Gatlin or Imperial mitrailleurs. One important one is that the gun-barrels are in a water casing, so that the heating of the barrels is impossible. The other is that the twenty-four barrels, starting at the breech in a circle, at their muzzles are grouped in an ellipse. By this means a lateral or horizontal range is given, instead of one in which other guns of a similar character throw the projectiles up and down, at right angles with the ground. The device for loading is also exceedingly novel. It is self-charging, something like the Henry rifle. Metallic cartridges are placed in hollow tubes, which are fed up to the chambers by the motion of a lever. A most ingenious device is used for firing, and on moving the crank and adjusting a simple mechanism, the mitrailleur may either be used to discharge its load en fusilade, the twenty-four shots going off one after the other, or the whole may be fired at once. It has four chambers, each one of which can be put instantly in position, fired and cleared of its cartridges. In the fusilade firing, as exhibited yesterday, it discharged about 700 rounds a minute; when fired in volley, about 1,000. The calibre of cartridge used was 14, and at a distance of 300 yards the lateral range spread the balls about 35 feet to the right and left of a given centre. It is intended for the Vienna exhibition. For use against cavalry and infantry it would be a most terrible arm and it has excited great interest among our own artillery officers.—N. Y. Times, March 26.

ELEGANCE DOES NOT MAKE A HOME. I never saw a garment too good for a man or a maid; there never was a chair too good for a cobbler, cooper or a king to sit in; never a house too fine to shelter the human head. These elements about us, the gorgeous sky, the imperial sun, are not too good for the human race. Elegance fits man. But do we not value these tools of housekeeping more than they are worth, and sometimes mortgage a house for the sake of the mahogany we would bring into it? I had rather eat my dinner off the head of a barrel, or dress after the fashion of John the Baptist in the wilderness, or sit on a block all my life, than consume all myself before I got to a home, and take so much pains with the outside that the inside was as hollow as an empty nut. Beauty is a great thing, but beauty of garments, house and furniture is a very tawdry ornament compared with domestic love. All the elegance in the world will not make a home, and I would give more for a spoonful of real hearty love than for whole ship loads of furniture, and all the gorgeousness that all the upholsterers of the world could get gathered together.

WELL DESERVED.—The Placer Herald, edited by Ex-Lieutenant Governor Walkup, pays the following well deserved tribute to California's Democratic Senator: Senator Casserly seems now to be doing more to defeat corruption in Congress than any Senator from this State. The hundred Democrats in both Houses listen to him and act as he suggests on measures affecting this coast; thus he is enabled to defeat most of the matters prepared by the California Goat Island thief ring. It was him that quietly went into the House and got the promise of every Democratic member to vote for the resolution declaring the Goat Island bill a cheat and a swindle, and one that ought not to pass. When the resolution came up every Democrat voted for it, and it passed by a handsome majority. It was he that made the great telling speech that killed the Goat Island grab before the Military Committee of the Senate. In fact, the honest people of California have a right to be proud of Senator Casserly and his course in the Senate. For this the Union and Bulletin are doing him tardy justice, but it is better late than never, and for even this Stanford's horse paper bucks.

The new scale of salaries for officers of the Government, just passed by Congress, is as follows: President of the United States, $50,000; Vice-President, $10,000; Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, $10,500; Justices of the Supreme Court, $10,000; Cabinet officers, $10,000; Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury, State and Interior Departments, $6,000; Speaker of the House, after the present Congress, $10,000; Senators, Representatives and Delegates, including the present Congress, $7,500. This is to be in lieu of all pay and allowances, except actual individual traveling expenses from their homes to the seat of Government and return, by the most direct route of usual travel, for each session.

DEFEAT is a school in which Truth always grows strong.

Spurgeon's Advice Gratis.

Nobody is more like an honest man than a thorough rogue.

When you see a man with a great deal of religion displayed in his shop window, you may depend upon it he keeps a very small stock of it within.

Do not choose your friend by his look. Handsome shoes often pinch the feet.

Don't be too fond of compliments; remember, "thank you, pussy, and thank you, pussy," killed the cat.

Don't believe the man who talks most; for mewing cats are seldom good mousers.

By no means put yourself in another person's power; if you put your thumb between two grinders, they are very apt to bite.

Drink nothing without seeing it; sign nothing without reading it, and make sure that it means no more than it says.

Don't go to law unless you have nothing to lose; lawyer's houses are built on fools' heads.

In any business never wade into water where you can't see the bottom.

Put no dependence in the label of a bag; and count your money after your own kin.

See the sack open before you buy what is in it; for he who trades in the dark asks to be cheated.

Keep clear of the man who does not value his character.

Beware of any man who swears; he who would blaspheme his Maker would make no bones of lying or stealing.

Beware of no man more than of yourself; we carry our worst enemies with us.

When a new opinion or doctrine comes before you, do not bite till you know whether it is bread or stone; and do not be sure that the gingerbread is good because of the gilt on it.

Never shout halloo! till you are quite out of the wood; and never cry fried fish till they are caught in the net.

There is always time to boast—wait a little longer.

Don't throw away dirty water till you have got clean; keep on scraping the roads till you get better work, for the poorest pay is better than none, and the humblest office is better than being out of employment.

Always give up the road to bulls and madmen; and never fight with a coal heaver, nor contend with a base character, for they will be sure to blacken you.

THE EARTHQUAKES IN SALVADOR.—Shocks of earthquakes continue to be felt in the unfortunate city of San Vincente. The greater part of the houses in the Valley of the Lempa are uninhabitable. After the great earthquake of the 30th of December last, the river Achuapa, which runs close to the city, became quite muddy, which gave reason to believe that the causes were connected with the volcano of San Vicente, only that on the declivities of the mountain no damage was done. About four miles distant from the city toward the east there is a plain called Earthquake Plain, with a hill in it near the confluence of the Achahuapa with the Ismatic, where the shocks are more frequent and severe than in the city. At every shock great rocks roll down from the neighboring hills, and in "earthquake hills" deep and broad ravines opened up some 400 yards long. In this region it is feared that a volcanic eruption is about to take place. The scene, says La Tribuna, presented by the city of San Vicente, is deplorable and melancholy. Naked walls everywhere, rent and threatening to fall to the ground; roofs useless, the public edifices ruined, streets deserted and the miserable inhabitants living in the squares and vacant lots sheltered by huts or branches of trees, and in tents. For twenty-six days they have been living thus, exposed to the sun and the night dew. Twenty-five of the best families removed to other cities, generally without any hope of returning.

DEATH FROM SMOKING.—The New York correspondent of the Buffalo Courier reports a sad case of death resulting from smoking. He says that for thirty years the victim had been a heavy smoker of the choicest cigars, but in all his other habits temperate and regular, and of excellent constitution—one who, of all men, would have laughed at the suggestion that tobacco was killing him. On Sunday he was stricken with the progressive paralysis characteristic of nicotine, and on the next Sunday night he died. His death was most pitiful. First, sight was lost, then speech, then motion of the neck, then motion of the arms, and so on throughout the body, and he lay for a fortnight unable to move or make a sign, save a pitiful, tongueless, inarticulate sound, which sometimes rose to almost frantic effort, all in vain, to make known what he wished to say to his family or friends—for his consciousness and mental faculties were left unimpaired till within two hours of the last, to aggravate to the utmost the horror of his situation—a living soul in a dead body. The sense of hearing was left unimpaired, so that he was conscious of all around him, while as incapable of communicating with them as if dead, save by a slight sign of assent or dissent to the question. The doctors were fully agreed that tobacco was the sole cause of this stroke.

THE CONGRESSIONAL EXTRA PAY. During the late election the Times did all it could to defeat Houghton for Congress, knowing him to be unfit for the position. The Delta of this place did all it could to elect him. He was elected. We predicted then that even Republicans would live to be sorry they voted for him. Our prediction is coming true. Read the following from the Delta of last Thursday, which, whether honestly expressed or not, is all true as far as it goes:

"We now know from the list of votes that our Representative, (misrepresentative) Houghton, voted for the increase of pay, and back pay. The bill puts about five thousand dollars of the public money in his pocket. This is the crowning scandal of a most infamous session, so odorous of rascality that many refused to receive it after it was voted. So utterly unprecedented and disgraceful, that several legislatures have noticed it with reprobation. In view of these facts, there is nothing left for the Republican party of California, but to avow better principles, and leave these men out in the cold; that, or to be branded as the party of peculation and stealing. Which shall it be?"—Tulare Times.

An Opportunity Lost.

The New York Sun thus pointedly supposes the case of President Grant's signing the increase salary bills: "Suppose that on the morning of Tuesday, March 4, when the bill increasing salaries was handed to President Grant he had, instead of signing it, sent it back to the House of Representatives with such a message as the following:

"I return herewith the bill providing for an increase of salaries without my signature, which I withold for the following reasons:

"I. This bill gives me $50,000 a year for the next four years without regard to the fact that when I accepted the nomination and election I contracted with the people to perform the duties of the office for $25,000 a year. It would be dishonest in me to draw any more by virtue of a bill passed as this one has been, and I refuse the proffer accordingly. Besides, apart from this decisive consideration, the question of increasing the President's salary was not discussed and decided by the people in the recent election, and I do not think that a measure of so serious a nature respecting the compensation of their public servants should ever be passed until they have had an opportunity of expressing their judgment upon it.

"II. I also disapprove of this bill because it increases the pay of members of Congress for a period of service already performed and already paid for. This appears to me to be a more flagrant invasion of popular rights and of the principles of common honesty even than that clause in it which doubles the President's salary."

Suppose President Grant had possessed intelligence and honor enough to send in such a message as this, what a great man he would be in the estimation of the people, and what a great man he would be in reality. As it is we shall have but little confidence either in the intelligence or honesty of the masses of the Republican party if they do not manifest in some emphatic manner their disapproval of President Grant's conduct in sanctioning the great outrage perpetrated by Congress just before its adjournment.

THE PROGRESS OF THE TEXAS PACIFIC.—For the information of the stockholders, General Breslaw, President of the California and Texas Railway Construction Company, has made a formal report, showing the amount of work accomplished on the Texas Pacific Railroad since March 1st. It shows 343 miles of road completed or in progress of completion in the State of Texas. Tracklaying commenced this month at West Long View and at Jefferson. The Construction Company's shops at Marshall are rapidly approaching their completion. Twenty thousand tons of iron, with the necessary frogs and switches, are now being delivered at Dallas and Shreveport, and their delivery is soon to commence on the lines which are built; 22 locomotives and 200 cars have been purchased, and other cars are being built. The Houston and Texas Central Railroad is now completed from Huston via Dallas, to Sherman, and connections with the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad will be made this month, giving the Texas Pacific connecting lines to St. Louis and Galveston. At Long View connection is being made with the International and Great Northern Railroad to Houston. Land grant bonds payable in currency, according to the Act of Congress, have recently been signed for delivery to the Company.—Examiner.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The Sacramento Agricultural Society have issued their programme for the Spring meeting, which will commence on Monday, May 19th. On Saturday the 24th, after the running race, there will be a grand ladies' tournament for the most accomplished and graceful lady riders, for which nine prizes are offered as follows: First prize, by the Arcade Hotel, Thomas Guineau, a splendid silver tea set, six pieces and salver, valued $125. Second prize, by the Union Hotel, Kobloch, Bearer & Townsend, proprietors, a splendid tea set, six pieces, of the value of $110. Third prize, by the City Hotel, J. Coulan proprietor, a splendid lady's gold watch, value $100. Fourth prize, by the Capital Hotel, Traver & Blessing, proprietors, a magnificent saddle and bridle and whip, value $90. Fifth prize, by Wythe & Nichols, a beautiful black Llama lace shawl, value $75. Sixth prize, by Lipman & Co., a beautiful black point lace parasol, valued at $60. Seventh prize, by E. H. Wachorst, a splendid silver pitcher and opera glass, value $40. Eighth prize, by Pacific Hotel, a splendid silver pitcher, value $37 50. Ninth prize, by Samuel Jolly, a splendid silver fruit dish and opera glass, value $35.

A HANDSOME GIFT.—Commodore Vanderbilt, who is said to be the wealthiest man in the United States, has made a princely use of a part of his immense fortune by giving the Methodists of Tennessee $500,000 to establish a university in that State. A noble gift for a noble purpose, and we congratulate our Tennessee friends on their good fortune. The Methodists of that section are numerous and zealous, number in their ranks a great number of the ablest men in the State, and have already done much for the cause of learning. We feel sure that the Vanderbilt donation has fallen into good hands, and that they will employ it to the best purpose to elevate still higher the standard of education among a people who are brave and generous, and who possess a large share of the qualities of sterling manhood. We believe that no intimation has been given as to the location of the contemplated university. Knoxville and Nashville have each a university already, and it is likely that a third point will be selected for the location.

OFFICES ABOLISHED.—Frequent inquiries have been made at the Internal Revenue Bureau as to when the Act of December 24, 1872, abolishing the office of Assessor and Assistant Assessor of Internal Revenue will take effect. The Commissioner, in reply, notifies all that the law will be put into operation on the 30th of May, and and at that time the services of all the Assessors, 230 in number, and their assistants; about 1,200, will be dispensed with. The law provides that it shall go into effect on or before July 1st next, and the Commissioner has set the 30th of May as the most convenient time.—Examiner.

COUNTY AND TOWN OFFICIAL PAPER.

WOODLAND, CAL:

Saturday, April 12th, 1873.

DIXON CLUB.—The Dixon Farmers' Club numbers fifty-eight members.

AGAIN SENTENCED.—John Devine, otherwise known as the "Chicken," was again sentenced to be hung, not long since, by Judge McKinstry, the day fixed being May 9th.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—At Rochester, N. Y., a wall fell out of a building into the Genesee river carrying with it 25 or 30 persons all of whom were swept over the falls and lost. Later reports however state that the number reported lost is too large.

STATE SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.—The Annual Sunday School Convention of the Christian Church of California will commence in the Christian Chapel at Woodland on Tuesday next, April 15th, at 2 P. M., and continue over Wednesday.

SUPERVISORS.—The Board was in session the early part of the week but nothing of general interest was before them. Some bills were allowed, assessments satisfactorily arranged, and road matters attended to, which comprised the business of the session.

NEW MUSIC.—M. Gray, music dealer and publisher, 623-25 Clay street, San Francisco, has sent us Billy Emerson's last character song, "Old Black Joe," and also "Das Leedle Plack und Dan." Frontispiece: a photograph of Billy Emerson. They are both new and popular songs.

ANOTHER HORRIBLE MURDER.—On Thursday last E. A. Marchent was shot dead in his own office in San Francisco, by a wealthy farmer named Samuel. There are alleged causes for the shooting which will be ventilated when the murderer, who is confined in jail, has his trial.

FARMERS' UNION.—The first annual session of the California Farmers' Union commenced in San Francisco on Wednesday last. We hope to be able to give some of its proceedings in our next issue. There is quite a large representation of delegates from the local Clubs throughout the State.

SAMPLE EDITORIALS.—For "rich specimens" in the way of editorial articles, we refer our readers to the last issue of the Mail. For a grand mixture of ideas, and as a sample of murdering "the King's English," we venture to say it has rarely, if ever, been excelled by any newspaper making claims to respectability.

STATE MEDICAL SOCIETY.—This Society met at Sacramento on Wednesday last. A large number of delegates were present. Among them we noticed in the Union the names from this county of Dr. M. Gardner of Davisville, Dr. John Gardner from Cacheville, and Drs. Ross, Parramore, Strong and Peirson of Woodland.

SUICIDE AND ASSASSINATION.—From the Butte Record of April 5th we learn that Miss Lizzie Wicks, a school teacher of that county, committed suicide at Dayton on the 20th ult., by taking strychnine. The cause is not positively known, but it is supposed to have been caused by the breaking of an engagement with a gentlemen whose name is not given. The same paper also gives an account of the assassination of Rocco Marchella, in Oroville, on the 18th ult., by a Slavonian named John Ross, without any known cause. Marchella was formerly a resident of San Francisco. The assassin has been arrested.

SUDDEN DEATH.—On Friday morning, about six o'clock, an old and respected townsman, J. I. Carico, was found dead in Hubbard & Sill's stable, where he kept his office of veterinary surgeon. Deceased was found lying upon his back on the floor outside of his office, the left arm under his back, and the right arm raised above his head. There were no marks of violence upon his body, but his countenance indicated that he had suffered great pain. Justice Minis summoned a coroner's jury to hold an inquest upon the body. A post mortem examination was also made, which disclosed an affection of the heart, and the jury rendered a verdict to the effect that the deceased, J. I. Carico, aged about sixty years, came to his death on or about the 10th of April, 1873, in the Town of Woodland, Yolo County, California, from the effects of heart disease. A notice of the time and place of the funeral will be found under the head of "Died."

DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPHS.—The telegraph brings news of several Democratic victories at the Connecticut State election and at municipal elections which occurred on Monday last:

Connecticut elected a Democratic Governor by a plurality of 5,700 over the Republican and by 3,600 over all,—there being a Temperance candidate in the field, also. In the Legislature the House will be Democratic by 12 to 15 majority, and the Senate Republican by 1 majority—giving a clear Democratic majority on joint ballot. The four Congressmen were re-elected—three Republicans and one Democrat. The Legislature will of course elect a Democratic United States Senator.

At the Cincinnati municipal election the Democrats were victorious on Mayor and all the other offices with, perhaps, one or two exceptions.

In Columbus the Democrats elected their candidate for Mayor and seven out of eleven Councilmen.

In Toledo a Democratic Mayor was elected by a small majority.

In the Suscol Hills.

[Written for The Yolo Democrat.]

The Suscol Hills are in the western part of Solano County, and make a continuous chain of low hills from the main Coast Range mountains. The principal road from Sacramento City, leading to Napa, passes through them; and many of my readers know that the treeless hills with rich soil are in cultivation almost to their very tops.

Very pleasant is the memory of my sojourn among them. The Summer here in Yolo had been intensely warm. The south winds, that are generally cool, came with heated breath; and, as if to bid me a memorable good bye, the morning I started old "Boreas," the north wind, blew terrible blasts, and traveled with me till I entered the hills, when it went tearing on over Suisun Bay, and on, perhaps, to lash the ocean's waves into angry foam.

I taught school in a pleasant schoolhouse nestling among oak trees, and sheltered by beautiful hills. The continually blowing sea breeze that came, redolent with health and buoyancy, kept a sad refrain in the tree tops, while sometimes making me so homesick at heart I could only find relief in labor with my school.

Hill after hill I climbed for amusement and exercise. We planned a visit to the highest one in sight. After a long walk, and sometimes scrambling with hands and feet, we gained the summit. The world, spread out before us, seemed asleep in the bright sunshine. The hills were lost to view in the distant south, and higher and higher grew the mountains to the north of us; but east we could see so, so far away! In the east, the Sierra Nevada mountains were one long line of deepest blue, the Sacramento River was fringed with a border of green; while Suisun city and Fairfield were right before us. In these "cities of the plains" there were no trees to break the stiff array of houses; but the soft tints of the bay were a relief to the scene, while far away the many schooners, with white sails spread, looked like great birds skimming Suisun's placid waters.

In the west, Napa river ran in very low banks its zigzag course to the south, a ribbon of silver sheen, lighting up the quiet colors around it; and Napa city, where white cottages gleam through bright green trees, was very beautiful; its blendings of lights and shadows, were lovely enough for an artist's picture.

When returning home we visited some camels that were feeding in a field near by. They were tall, lank, and ungainly, yet how vividly they bring to mind the many things we have read about in the Old World, where their usefulness for long ages has been known. In Abraham's time we know that Rebecca give drink to his servant while the camels reclined or knelt patiently at the well. What a great picture it is!

Indian Summer stole quietly over the Suscol Hills, purple mists thickened the atmosphere, and spread like a vail over nature's sunny places. The brown leaves came flitting from their high, airy world, but the "ever-green" trees looked more green than ever, when a passing shower washed every particle of dust from off the leaves. The Matherone berries where such a beautiful scarlet, it was impossible to pass by them and not pluck a handfull.

There are many pretty homes in those quiet valleys where the Suscol Hills protect them from the strong sea breeze in summer, and from the fierce storm winds in winter.

Farmers' Club.

SATURDAY, April 5th, 1873.

Club met and was called to order by F. S. Freeman, Vice President.

Minutes of March 15th read and approved.

W. M. Jackson reported verbally on the price of sacks.

On motion of N. Wyckoff, that a committee be appointed by the Club to take subscriptions from farmers and ascertain the number of sacks they would have to purchase, W. M. Jackson, F. S. Freeman and N. Wyckoff were elected such committee.

On motion of N. Wyckoff, the Club proceeded to receive propositions for membership, whereupon P. Beck, Joseph Schuder, John Griggs, Chas. Hiddleson, Theo. Dopkins, J. S. Tutt, Russel Day, F. C. Ruggles, J. Ogden, Theo. Weyand, Fred Schlieman and Geo. Hartsock were proposed for membership and separately elected members of the Club.

The Storage question was discussed at some length, and on motion of N. Wyckoff was laid over.

On motion of W. M. Jackson, the hour for the meeting of the Club was fixed at 2 o'clock, sharp.

On motion Club adjourned.

D. SCHINDLER, Sec'y.

THE EAGLE KILLED.—On Wednesday last Judge Henry, who has had a fine eagle bird confined in the basement of the Court House for a year past, let his majesty out for an airing, first providing against his flight. Being freed from his imprisonment, the noble bird felt like indulging his natural inclination to stray off, and in doing so was mistaken for a wild bird of the forest and shot. The person who did the shooting expressed great sorrow when he found it was the Judge's pet eagle, and fully apologised for the act.

FOR the first two months this year, the treasure exports from New York alone reached $10,798,909, against $2,513,000 for the same time last year and $6,171,000 for that time in 1871. The supply of coin and bullion in the United States is much smaller than it was a year ago, and yet the demand for it is four-fold larger.

Cacheville Letter.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

[The following letter was unavoidably crowded out last week.]

CACHEVILLE, April 2d, 1873.

ED. DEMOCRAT:—Passing through the country we observe grain in various stages, from an inch to a foot high; some looks exceedingly well, while other does not look so promising. Rain is wanted very much on the late sowed grain; summer-fallowed grain does not need it so much. Among the best fields I may class one owned by Asa Morris; it is not only remarkable for its thrifty growth, but for its being even in height, and being in a healthful condition.

A gentleman from Colusa gives the information that crops in that locality are looking fine, and that the grain has headed out, and will do to harvest by the first of June.

The saloon belonging to R. Hines has been slightly renovated and Robt. Buckley has taken possession of it.

"Hungry Hollow" is yet alive. A gentleman from that place last Saturday, remarked that it was looking well, only "a man has to keep behind a hill or he will get hit by the gravel blown by the winds." They want rain there above all things.

The Christians in our town are trying to plan some scheme to build a parsonage. That is one of many things needed, and ought to be built.

The "great dearth" seems to be troubling the editor of the Mail very much. In his issue of March 27th he remarks—"We have been looking up the epizootic news, hoping it would be here by this time to relieve the general calm." I am impelled to agree with him in regard to the scarcity of news, but I don't think I will ever get so hard-hearted as to wish for such a terror-striking affliction to find its way into the midst of a happy people, merely to have something to talk about, nor do I think any citizen who has any interest in the welfare of the community will.

A. B. C.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT—TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—On the 6th of March my house, for which I was in debt $70.00, with nearly all I had was consumed by fire. It was a sad day for me and my two fatherless children. But by the voluntary and liberal contributions of many kind friends—citizens of Woodland and vicinity—we now have a larger and better house and the debt on the first house is canceled. Wearing apparel and other necessities have been kindly supplied, so that we are comfortable. And now we desire to express our thanks to one and all who have so kindly remembered us in our time of need. May the blessings of the Giver of all good rest upon each and all of the kind donors evermore.

MRS. S. WALL.

FILLED AT LAST.—The ditch that was open so long on Third street has at last been filled in. A new pipe was laid in it to supply the Court House with water—the old one now supplies it with gas—great improvements.

GRAND JURY.—The Grand Jury was in session three days, found two true bills of indictment and ignored six. We did not learn that anything of importance came up for action.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT!

FOR MAN AND BEAST.

Probably few articles ever had so extensive a sale, while none have been more universally beneficial than the celebrated MEXICAN LINIMENT. Children, Adults, Horses and Domestic Animals, are always liable to accident, and it is safe to say that no family can pass a single season without some kind of an emollient being necessary. It becomes a matter of importance, then, to secure the best.

☞ Over three hundred livery stables, in the city of New York, alone, are using the Mexican Mustang Liniment, in all of which it gives unusual satisfaction.

CAUTION—The genuine is wrapped in a fine Steel Plate engraving with "G. W. Westbrook, Chemist," and "Trade Mark, MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT," engraved across the face of each wrapper. The whole bears the proprietor's private United States Revenue Stamp, and not a common stamp, as used by druggists.

District Court Summons.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE SIXTH Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Yolo.

JENNIE GIBSON, Plaintiff, against CHAS. GIBSON, Defendant.

Action brought in the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Yolo, and the Complaint filed in said County of Yolo, in the office of the Clerk of said District Court.

The People of the State of California send greeting to CHARLES GIBSON, defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District of the State of California in and for the County of Yolo, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served out of this county, but in this district, within twenty days; otherwise within forty days—or judgment by default will be taken against you, according to the prayer of said Complaint.

The said action is brought to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony contracted between said Plaintiff and Defendant.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said Complaint, as above required, the said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief therein prayed for.

Given under my hand and the Seal of the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District of the State of California, in and for the County of Yolo, this 11th day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and seventy-three.

[L. S.] D. SCHINDLER, Clerk.

Town and County Matters

STAR (*) NOTICES in the local column will hereafter be charged 10 cents a line for the first, and 5 cents a line for each subsequent insertion.

CANVASSING THE COUNTY.—Mr. Philemon Beck, who has made a pretty general canvass in these parts for subscriptions to "Banyan's Pilgrim's Progress," is in the field again with that and other works, intending to go over the entire county. "Religious Denominations of the World" is the title of one of these works by Vincent L. Milner, with an appendix down to the present time. "The Life of Jesus Christ and the Lives and Sufferings of his Apostles and Evangelists," by Rev. John Fleetwood, D. D., to which is added "The Lives and Labors of Eminent Christians and Martyrs from the Crucifixion to the Reformation," and a History of the Jews. Also a very fine Family Bible with over 200 illustrations; size, 10x12 inches. Any one desiring to purchase books will find these to be standard and reliable works.

DR. ANDERSON'S REGISTRY OF BIRTHS AND DEATHS.—Births—Jan. 22, 1873, sex, male; color, white; parents, Hunneman; residence, Yolo County, Cal. Feb. 22, 1873, sex, male; color, white; parents, Fitzgerald; residence, Yolo County, Cal. Death—Jan. 20, 1873; name, Dill; age, one month; Yolo County, Cal.

I hereby certify the above is to be a correct, true and full report of my register of births and deaths for the quarter ending April 1st, 1873.

P. H. ANDERSON, M. D.

MAY-DAY PICNIC.—The Woodland Turn-Verein Association have made arrangements for a grand picnic on the first day of May, at the same place as last year, on the north side of Washington Gardens, upon the bank of Cache Creek. Arrangements are making to insure a good time to all who attend.

WATER PIPES.—New pipes are being laid north of the Court House on Third street. Connection is also about to be made with the same main to carry water along Court street east from Third. We also hear of many in the south part of town who want the water as soon as the pipes can be laid.

NEW CHURCH SERVICES.—Elder Cornell will speak this (Saturday) evening and to-morrow at 11 A. M. and 7½ P.M. The ordinance of Baptism will be administered on Sunday at 3 o'clock at the usual place. Elder J. N. Loughborough will preach on Tuesday evening next at 7½ o'clock.

MILLINERY, ETC.—Mrs. Ogburn announces the receipt of a large assortment of Millinery goods of the newest styles, which she invites the ladies to call and examine and offers at reasonable prices. Also dressmaking to order in any desired style and according to the most approved modes.

MAY-DAY BALL.—The Red Men of this place have issued posters announcing their May-Day Ball at Washington Hall on Thursday evening, May 1st. Wood & Simpon's Band, six instruments, has been engaged for the occasion. The public are invited. Tickets including supper $3.50.

SOCIAL PARTIES.—Messrs. Church & Jones inform us that they will give a social dance at Central Hall on Monday evening, April 21st. They will skip the weekly party of next Monday evening, and invite their friends to attend the social dance on the evening of the 21st, as above.

SOCIAL PARTY.—There will be a social party at Pleasant Prairie School House, nine miles southwest of Woodland, on Friday evening next, the 18th inst. Music by the Woodland String Band. The public are cordially invited to attend. Admission $1.

ODD FELLOWS' BALL.—A grand ball will be given at Davisville on Wednesday evening next, April 19th, by Yolo Lodge, No. 169, I. O. O. F. We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket. Committee of Arrangements—E. L. Brown, J. Horning and O. D. Reed.

SOCIAL PARTY.—Wood & Simpson's Band will give a social party at Central Hall on Thursday Evening, April 17th. This Band, as newly organized, is one of the very best on the coast, so that the music will be first-class and the tickets will be only one dollar.

LOST.—On yesterday (Friday) in or near Woodland, an oval gold-quartz watch seal. If the finder will leave it at this office or with J. H. Brogan, he will be liberally rewarded.

NEW PROPRIETOR.—Chris. Seiber has purchased the Pacific Saloon stock and fixtures and taken possession.

ARRIVED.—Mr. L. Ellis, musician, has returned to Woodland to take up his permanent residence here. His family will arrive in a few days.

COUNTY JAIL.—This institution is almost cleared out. At the present time it contains only one prisoner.

Half Alive.

It is a sad thing to pass through life only half alive. Yet there are thousands whose habitual condition is one of languor and debility. They complain of no specific disease; they suffer no positive pain; but they have no relish for anything which affords mental or sensuous pleasure to their more robust and energetic fellow beings.

In nine cases out of ten this state of lassitude and languor arises from a morbid stomach. Indigestion destroys the energy of both mind and body. When the waste of nature is not supplied by a due and regular assimilation of the food, every organ is starved, every function interrupted.

Now, what does common sense suggest under these circumstances of depression? The system needs rousing and strengthening; not merely for an hour or two, to sink afterwards into a more pitiable condition than ever (as it assuredly would do if an ordinary alehoolic stimulant was resorted to), but radically and permanently.

How is this desirable object to be accomplished? The answer to this question, founded on the unvarying experience of a quarter of a century, is easily given. Infuse new vigor into the digestive organs by a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Do not waste time in administering temporary remedies, but wake the system up by recuperating the fountain head of physical strength and energy, the great organ upon which all the other organs depend for their nurture and support.

By the time that a dozen doses of the great vegetable tonic and invigorant have been taken, the feeble frame of the dyspeptic will begin to feel its benign influence. Appetite will be created, and with appetite the capacity to digest what it craves. Persevere until the cure is complete—until healthful blood, fit to be the material of flesh and muscle, bone and nerve and brain, flows through the channels of circulation, instead of the watery pabulum with which they have heretofore been imperfectly nourished. ap12-1m

"BEHOLD how great a fire a little matter kindleth." A cold is often called a little matter. But it is such little matters that lead to consumption, disease and death. Do not neglect a cold. It may be cured by Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will also cure Coughs, Bronchitis, etc.

AS A remedy for Bronchial Affections and Chronic Diseases of the Lungs, nothing ever before discovered equals Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

FOR THE VERY BEST PHOTOGRAPHS, go to Bradley & Rulofson's Gallery, without stairs. Ascend in the Elevator—429 Montgomery St, San Francisco.

MARRIED.

At the Exchange Hotel, Woodland, April 9th, by Elder J. N. Pendegast, Mr. Milton Bounds to Miss Helen V. Westcott.

Accompanying the above notice we were favored liberally with rich cake and sparkling wine. The bride is the esteemed daughter of O. B. Westcott, landlord of the Exchange, and the bridegroom was formerly telegraph operator at this place, but more recently engaged as Clerk of the Exchange. Our earnest hope is that they will both realize their fondest desires; that the burdens of married life may rest lightly upon them; that they may, thus united, dwell happily among us, and that they will enjoy life for lo these many years.

DIED.

Found dead at Hubbard & Sill's Stables, in Woodland, on Friday morning, April 11th, J. L. Carico, a native of Kentucky, aged about 60 years.

The funeral will take place at the Christian Church to-day (Saturday) at 3 o'clock P.M. Discourse by Elder Pendegast. Friends of the deceased are invited to attend.

In Woodland, at 3 A.M., April 12th, Wm. Ziegler, aged 54 years.

Funeral from his late residence, Washington Hall building, to-morrow (Sunday) at 3½ P.M.

Religious Services.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH—Elder J. N. Pendegast. Services at the Chapel every Sabbath at 11 A.M. and 7.00 P.M. Sunday School at 9 A.M. Prayer meeting every Thursday evening at 7.00.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH—Preaching every Sunday, in Central Hall, by Rev. S. R. Rosboro, at 11 A.M. and 6:30 P.M. All are invited. Sabbath School immediately after the morning services.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH—Rev. A. R. Sheriff, Pastor. Preaching every Sabbath at 11 A.M. and 7.00 P.M. Seats free. Sabbath School at 9.30 A.M. Prayer-meeting, Thursday evening at 7.00, and Class-meeting on Monday evening at 7.00 o'clock, at the Church.

CATHOLIC CHURCH.—Mass will be celebrated in the Court House, Woodland, at 11:30 A.M., on the first, third and fourth Sundays, and in Davisville on the second Sunday of each month.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A Card to the Suffering.

The writer of this notice will cheerfully send (free of charge) to all who request it, the RECEIPE for making and successfully using a very simple VEGETABLE REMEDY, that will be found a positive and Speedy cure for nervous debility, premature decay, loss of vitality and all forms of nervous affections, and the evils and disastrous consequences that follow in their train.

This remedy is entirely a product of the vegetable world. Its component parts are simple as nature herself is simple—harmless toward nature, yet powerful in opposing and eradicating disease. Consumptives, despondent and debilitated Nervous sufferers, do not fail to give this remedy a trial. It may save you from a life of misery or a premature grave. Letters of inquiry answered by return mail. Those who feel disposed will oblige by stating their symptoms—by so doing, beneficial suggestions may often be made. Address,

EDWARD BURNETT,
Tropical Nurseries, Albany, N. Y.

N.B.—Those suffering with incipient Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, &c., &c., will find speedy and permanent relief in the above mentioned remedy.

It is at least worthy a trial, as the cost is nominally nothing. Respectfully, fe22-8t EDWARD BURNETT.

IT IS a well-known fact that Dyspepsia and Indigestion are the causes of nearly all the diseases that the human body is heir to: then why pay enormous doctor's bills? By using Dr. Hedley's celebrated I X L Bitters they can be thoroughly eradicated from the system and new life imparted to the sufferer. Read physician's certificates in advertisement in another column. mh8-3m

THE ILLUSTRATED PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL!

VOLUME FIFTY-SIX, 1873.

THE SCIENCE OF MIND is the central point around which revolves the whole circle of sciences. It is the key to universal knowledge, and SELF KNOWLEDGE is the key to the Science of Mind.

PHRENOLOGY, the basis of Mental Philosophy. Shows how human character and capacity are related to the universal laws; and how humanity is harmonized with Divinity.

"KNOW THYSELF."—Since the Grecian sage inscribed these immortal words on the Temple of Delphi, the world has struggled toward a solution of the problems of human existence.

THE ORIGIN OF RACES, involving the Origin of Life, earnestly discussed by Ethnologists and Physiologists, cannot fail to interest the truth-seeker.

PHYSIOLOGY AND PSYCHOLOGY are prominent features; embracing the subjects of Soul, Mind, Bodily Structures and Functions, Social Relations, Education, Religion, Criminal Jurisprudence, etc.

PHYSIOGNOMY AND TEMPERAMENTS. Signs of Character, Peculiarities of Organization considered, with illustrations from life.

SELF-IMPROVEMENT.—All the gains of Science and Art should be applied to perfecting ourselves and improving the race.

HAPPY HOMES are the result of a normal education and development, and a life according to the laws of life.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL FOR 1873 will keep pace with the march of events, Scientific, Social and Political, and seek to declare the good and true.

TERMS.—Monthly, at $3 a year, in advance. Single numbers, 30 cents. Clubs of ten or more, $2 each. And the

ANXIOUS MOTHER,

A splendid OIL CHROMO, price $5, given to every subscriber. PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL, $3; THE SCIENCE OF HEALTH, $2 and the Chromo, $5, all for $4.50. Our Chromo is now Ready for Delivery. A MAGNIFICENT PRIZE!

SURPASSING ALL PREVIOUS OFFERS.

Each subscriber to DEMOREST'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE, at Three Dollars a year, will be presented with a premium of Two Elegant Chromos, companion pictures of the two most desirable and popular subjects in America—the Falls of Niagara and Yosemite Falls. Size of pictures, 10½ by 12½ inches.

These elegant Chromos, copied from beautiful pictures painted from nature by one of the first artists in America, give the most popular views of those interesting and sublime objects, and are faithful reproductions of the originals. The Grand Old Niagara, with its immense body of water falling one hundred and sixty feet, sending up immense clouds of spray to reflect in brilliancy and beauty the vivid colors of the rainbow, is so clearly depicted that, in imagination, you hear its mighty roar. The Yosemite, with its lofty mountains towering to the silvery clouds, and its stupendous falls of sixteen hundred feet, impressing with its awful grandeur, and filling the mind with delight and wonder.

These two Chromos are the best pictures ever published for Ten Dollars, and will be sent, mounted and varnished, by mail, as a premium to each yearly Three Dollar subscriber to our Monthly Magazine.

Reader, just think, TWO beautiful Chromos of Niagara and Yosemite.

The Inauguration.

The display of pomp and pageantry in Washington at the inaugurnation of Grant was entirely foreign to our ideas of Republican simplicity. It was what would be looked for in Europe upon the enthronement of a monarch; even the cadets from the Military School at West Point were brought there at an expense of many thousand dollars; troops from all parts of the country were ordered to Washington to take part in the ceremony. Did the President think for a moment, when his eye fell upon those serried columns, those bristling bayonets flashing in the sunlight, how much they were out of place there? Did he think of the bleaching bones so thickly strewn on every hillside, in every valley in Arizona? Did he not hear above the din of martial music the agonizing wail of the poor women and children who are enduring a captivity worse than death? Was not Gen. Crook's demand for those very troops—held there to minister to his vanity, to grace his triumph—to protect the settlers and to punish the blood-thirsty Apache, ringing in his ear? The failure to protect those poor frontier families was nothing in comparison to the gratification afforded him by the military display. What claim had they on him? From them no gifts had been received, no houses, no cottages by the sea, no fast horses; besides, those troops were needed to over-awe the South, to stifle the will of the people and uphold with their bayonets the rule and measures of the Radical party.—Sonoma Democrat.

BROKE HIS NECK.—Sacramento, April 4th, as James Dubois, owner of the well-known and valuable stallion "Robert E. Lee," was driving him in a skeleton wagon into town, from the Riverside road, the horse became restive, and when near the corner of Thirteenth and J streets ran away. In turning the corner the wagon broke, and Mr. Dubois was thrown out. The new thouroughly frightened animal continued on along Thirteenth street, the front wheels and shafts remaining attached to him. He reached H street just as the street car No. 4 was passing and before the driver could get across the street, he struck the rear end of the car with a shock that threw the car from the track and whirled it around until it stood at right angles with the track. So great was the force that the car door and several of its window frames were shattered and the platform crushed. The horse fell and died instantly, its neck being broken by the blow. Mr. Dubois, who was stunned when thrown from the wagon, was placed in a buggy and taken to a neighboring stable, where it was ascertained that he received no serious injuries. The animal which was killed was a valuable one, being sired by old "St. Clair" from a thoroughbred mare. He was a beautiful dapple-brown, and stood fifteen hands high. His weight was 1,000 pounds. He was well known to our turf men, many of whom where yesterday heard lamenting his untimely taking off. Subsequently an examination of the animal was made by Peter F. Mangan, veterinary surgeon, who found that death was caused by a concussion of the brain. The frontal bone, between the orbit and the eye, was crushed; one leg was also broken in twoplaces by the force with which it struck the car.

THE FATHER'S FACE.—At a rehearsal for an entertainment some time since a little five-year-old Bessie was placed upon the platform to recite a short poem. She commenced very bravely, but her eyes wandered all around the church, gathering more and more of disappointment into the face. Soon the lips began to quiver, and the litttle form shook with sobs. Her father stepped from behind a pillar from whence he had been watching her, and, taking her into his arms, said:

"Why darling, what is the matter? I thought my little girl knew the verses so well."

"So I do, papa; but I could not see you. Let me stand where I can look right into your face, papa, and I won't be afraid."

And is it not so with our Heavenly Father's children? We stand too often where we cannot look into His face. Darling sins and our pride, like pillars, rise up between us and God, and disappointment and tears are ours, until, casting these behind us, we stand in the light of our Father's face.

A NUT FOR ECONOMISTS TO CRACK. Just read this little piece, which we take from the Philadelphia Inquirer, and think over it: Here is a nut for political economists to crack, be their proclivities Free Trade or Protection. From the middle of 1862 to the last of June, 1872, the generous United States paid Paris the enormous sum of $200,000,000. This somewhat staggering amount was forwarded in gold, on account of jewelry, laces, silks, gloves, crapes, merinos, hats, human hair, and miscellaneous toilet articles. This very respectable bill does not include the gold forwarded from our shores to the French metropolis for wines, works of art, gentlemen's garments and fabrics from which to make the same. There is not a single item in the aggregate of the $260,000,000 which could not have been produced at home, or been readily dispensed with, and that with great benefit, too, not only to the purse, but the health of the consumers.

IMPORTANT TO CONSTABLES.—The Political Code, among other matters provides as follows: The seventh clause of Section 4,176 requires every constable to "indorse upon all processes and notices the year, month, day, hour and minute of reception," etc.; and the ninth clause of the same section requires him to "certify upon process or notice the manner and time of service; or, if he fails to make service, the reason of his failure, and return the same without delay. The Section 4,177 says that "if he does not return a notice or process in his possession, with the necessary endorsements thereon, without delay, he is liable to the party aggrieved for the sum of $200, and for all damages sustained by him.

THE EXPRESSION OF THE EYES.—Many tender and beautiful things have been said of the eyes; yet how inferior to the things uttered by themselves! A full eye seems to have been esteemed the most expressive. Such was the one that enchained the soul of Pericles. The American writer, Halburton, declares that he would not give a piece of tobacco for the nose except to tell when a dinner is good; nor a farthing for the mouth, except as a kennel for the tongue; but the eye—study that, and you will read any man's heart as plain as a book. If there is any feature in which genius always shows itself, it is the eye, which has been aptly called "index of the soul."

Plantation Bitters

S. T.—1860—X.

This wonderful Vegetable Restorative is the sheet anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid, it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

VINEGAR BITTERS

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing the merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

A sure Cure for Dyspepsia!

The best Liver Regulator known!

A most Efficient and Pleasant Tonic.

These Bitters are prepared from the most choice and wholesome herbs and roots, and have given universal satisfaction wherever tried. Thousands of dyspeptics have found relief through their use, and physicians recommend them for all diseases of the blood and liver, and irregularities of the digestive organs.

Headache, Biliousness, and Constipation, General Debility and Loss of Appetite, are all caused by the derangement of the Stomach, Liver and other functionaries of the system. The IXL bitters have been successfully used and are warranted to alleviate the sufferer in all the above cases.

CERTIFICATES.

MESSRS. H. EPSTEIN & Co.

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in stating that agreeably to your wish I have carefully tested and examined the sample of your IXL Bitters, which you sent me, and find it not only an agreeable Bitters, but also one that cannot fail to be beneficial as a tonic and promoter of Digestion.

G. HOLLAND, M.D.

CITY AND COUNTY HOSPITAL,
San Francisco, June 20th, 1871.

I have carefully examined Dr. Henley's IXL Bitters, and have failed to detect anything which could injure even the most delicate constitution. From the composition of the Bitters, as far as I am able to determine it, I should judge that the IXL Bitters must be a very efficient remedy in Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and similar complaints, being composed of a number of vegetable drugs which are principally used in diseases of that nature, and are of the greatest efficacy in their cure.

SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT

HAS MADE THE MOST ASTONISHING CURES; SO QUICK, SO RAPID ARE THE CHANGES THE BODY UNDERGOES, UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF THIS TRULY WONDERFUL MEDICINE, THAT

Every Day an Increase in Flesh and Weight is Seen and Felt.

THE GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER.

Every drop of the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT communicates through the Blood, Sweat, Urine, and other fluids and juices of the system the vigor of life, for it repairs the wastes of the body with new and sound material. Scrofula, Syphilis, Consumption, Glandular disease, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth, Tumors, Nodes in the Glands and other parts of the system, Sore Eyes, Strumous Discharges from the Ears, and the worst forms of Skin diseases, Eruptions, Fever Sores, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Acne, Black Spots, Worms in the Flesh, Tumors, Cancers in the Womb, and all weakening and painful discharges, Night Sweats, Loss of Sperm, and all wastes of the life principle, are within the curative range of this wonder of Modern Chemistry, and a few days' use will prove to any person using it for either of these forms of disease its potent power to cure them.

If the patient, daily becoming reduced by the wastes and decomposition that is continually progressing, succeeds in arresting these wastes, and repairs the same with new material made from healthy blood—and this the SARSAPARILLIAN will and does secure.

Not only does the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT excel all known remedial agents in the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous, Constitutional, and Skin diseases; but it is the only positive cure for

Kidney & Bladder Complaints,

Urinary, and Womb diseases, Gravel, Diabetes, Dropsy, Stoppage of Water, Incontinence of Urine, Bright's Disease, Albuminuria, and in all cases where there are brick-dust deposits, or the water is thick, cloudy, mixed with substances like the white of an egg, or threads like white silk, or there is a morbid, dark, bilious appearance, and white bone-dust deposits, and when there is a pricking, burning sensation when passing water, and pain in the Small of the Back and along the Loins. Price, $1.00.

Tumor of 12 Years' Growth Cured by Radway's Resolvent.

BEVERLY, MASS., July 16, 1869.

DR. RADWAY:—I have had Ovarian Tumor in the ovaries and bowels. All the Doctors said "there was no help for it." I tried every thing that was recommended; but nothing helped me. I saw your Resolvent, and thought I would try it; but had no faith in it, because I had suffered for twelve years. I took six bottles of the Resolvent, and one box of Radway's Pills, and two bottles of your Ready Relief; and there is not a sign of tumor to be seen or felt, and I feel better, smarter, and happier than I have for twelve years. The worst tumor was in the left side of the bowels, over the groin. I write this to you for the benefit of others. You can publish it if you choose.

"I am a Woman."

I am a woman—therefore I may not
Call to him, cry to him,
Fly to him,
Pray him delay not!

And when he comes to me, I must sit quiet:
Still as a stone is,
Harder and colder.
If my heart riot—
Crush and defy it!
Should I grow bolder—
Say one dear thing to him,
All my life fling to him,
Cling to him—
What to atone is
Enough for my sinning!
This were the cost to me,
This were my winning—
That he were lost to me!

Not as a lover at last if he part from me,
Tearing my heart from me—
Hurt beyond cure—
Calm and demure
Then my behavior:
Showing no sign to him
By look of mine to him,
What he has been to me.
Pity me—O my Savior!—Scribner's.

Seeking A Servant.

My wife is a delicate little woman. She was esteemed a great beauty when I married her. Her mother told me that, if I would preserve the roses in her cheeks, I must be very tender of her, and shield her from too much care. For that reason I have always advocated the dismissal of servants who were not absolutely perfect. One morning, last week, Jane omitted to put large spoons on the table, and the cruets were entirely empty. I took the matter in hand, as a good, kind, considerate thoughtful husband should, and spoke sharply to the girl. She undertook to answer me back, and I sent her straight out of the house.

"That's the way to do it," I said. "If one girl doesn't suit, try another."

"But my dear, Jane was a good servant in most respects."

"That is what you say of them all. I tell you, and have told you repeatedly, that it is just as easy to get those who are right altogether. You are too gentle a mistress and your servants impose upon you. If I had the charge of the house they would have to toe the mark. I am tired of seeing you so overshadowed with household affairs. Even now wrinkles are settling in your forehead, as if you were forty-five instead of twenty-seven."

"Ah! the wrinkles date far back of Jane's forgetfulness. I am not sure but they have been produced by the frequency of my visits to intelligence offices. I thought, the last time I went to one, that my hair would turn white before I got away."

"Why don't you follow up some of those girls who advertise in the Herald? My mother used to, and was very successful."

"I have. I got Delia from an advertisement—the one who sat down on the baby, thinking he was the rag-bag—and Alice, who stole all my best towels, and Julia, who would take her beaux into the parlor every time we were out in the evening, and I don't know how many more. I have come to the conclusion, that when a servant is neat and honest, it is best to overlook trifling shortcomings. If my husband was just a little more patient, I think I could manage very well. I am worn out with servant-hunting."

"Servant-hunting! I should think it would be a pleasure. I can't imagine anything so dreadful about it."

"Suppose you try it. I really do not feel well enough to make the effort; I would rather do my own work for a month."

My wife did not usually speak with so much earnestness; and it surprised me. Besides, she looked pale, and, as I said before, I am a model of a husband.

It was a pleasant morning. I had enough to do; but then I might as well be hindered half an hour to oblige my wife as to waste so much time smoking after lunch.

"I will, darling. Lie down and rest yourself, or read the papers. Take no thought about the matter; and now good-morning."

I kissed her, and went on my way. I bought a Herald at a stand on the corner. Glancing at the list of "Situations wanted," I smiled at the absurd idea of putting up with incompetent servants when such an army was in the field. I selected two numbers, which I thought would suit. They each contained three figures, and of couse, were some distance away across the avenues. It was not an inviting-looking neighborhood, and the building into which I entered was far from prepossessing. I knocked at the first door on the first floor. A fat red-faced woman left the wash-tub and opened it.

"Did a girl advertise from here for a place this morning?"

"Not as I knows on. Maybe it is in the back room."

I then knocked at the next door. It was opened by a little girl of nine or ten, barefooted and ragged, and her mouth full of baked potato. Four other children, of various sizes, came running to look at me.

"Is your mother in?" I inquired.

"No."

"Is there a girl here who wants a place?"

"No."

"Do you know whether there is one in the building?"

"No."

"Maybe it is upstairs!" screamed an old crone from a bed in the corner of the room, as I took out the Herald to see if I had not mistaken the number. I ascended a narrow staircase, and passed along a dark, gloomy corridor. I knocked at the door, and repeated my inquiries to a yellow, sickly-looking woman, with a babe in her arms. She knew nothing of any such advertisement, but it might be in the next room.

At the next room they thought that perhaps it was up stairs. So I was handed along from one to another until I reached the fifth floor. There I gained the extraordinary information that it might be in the back yard. Reaching the ground-floor in safety, I proceeded to the rear, where there was a three-story house on the same lot, with the space of only about ten feet between. An old man sat on the pavement smoking.

"How many families are there in the building?" I asked.

He cogitated a moment or two before he replied:

"Twelve, sir."

It was true! The hall ran through the center of the building, making four rooms on each floor, and each room contained a family. I visited every room before I found the one the girl had advertised from. It was the most respectable looking one of the lot, and the occupant was a young, well-dressed woman. My spirits rose like foam and went down as quickly. The girl herself had not come yet. She lived in Brooklyn.

I wheeled very abruptly and hurried to the sidewalk. Ugly words rose to my lips, but I did not speak them. I wondered if Effie had ever visited such an abode. Taking out the Herald again I read:

"No 333 West —— street—a young girl who understands her business, and is neat and obliging."

It was only two blocks off. This time I was fortunate enough to hit the right room at the first knock. The girl herself opened the door. Her manner was a little forbidding. I fancy she belonged to the snapping-turtle order. Nothing daunted, however, I explained my business.

"How many be's there in your family, sir?" she asked, as she surveyed me from head to foot. I dress well as a general rule; but it was a windy day, and I was in a part of the city where the streets were not watered. Consequently the damsel before me could not make up her mind on the instant whether I would answer for a master or not. I gave her the number she would be expected to serve.

"Do there be a carpet on the girls, room?"

"Yes. Now please inform me if you know how to take care of the whole upper part of the house and dining-room, and will do it well?"

"Do there be any fires to make?"

"One or two, I think."

"I guess the place wouldn't suit me. Never make fires. Boys always do them where I lives."

I was again afloat. I didn't fold and put my newspaper into my pocket any more. I read as I walked. According to my printed information, the most desirable person for me to visit was "a smart, capable, willing girl," in the neighborhood of Second Avenue. Quite a stretch from the western part of the city, but I went. It was a five story house again. I gave a boy a quarter to run up stairs and make inquiries for me, and he never came back to report. Near the third landing I found the maiden. She was staying with a friend, in a little room twelve by fourteen. The "friend" was a dealer in old clothes, and was just sorting over a cargo. The smart, capable, willing girl, had seen full sixty-five summers, and her hair was as snow. She was sitting with her feet in a pail of water, trying to cure corns, she said. I left.

I was getting slightly out of temper when I reached the sidewalk. A dog harnessed in a small cart obstructed the way. I raised my foot and removed the whole establishment into the street. After that I felt better. Turning for comfort again to the Herald I found "situations wanted" by several in that vicinity; and I rendered unto all the light of my countenance. One girl had just "engaged." Another did not like to go where they did not keep a "full set of help." A third seemed qualified for our purpose, but her cousin was dead, and she could not come for a week. The fourth didn't like our location. The fifth made very pointed inquiries about the number of girls we had during the year, and then declined engaging where they changed help so often. The sixth didn't ever "negoshunate" with a gentleman; the madame must come herself. The seventh wanted too many privileges, and had lost her front teeth. The eighth asked my name and place of business, but having never heard of me before, very dryly remarked that she "only lived with the first families." The ninth was a fair-haired blue-eyed German, who was not only willing but exceedingly anxious to undertake anything. She promised to go to my wife in the course of an hour; and I, thoroughly disgusted with this world, and particularly with the portion of it which I had just explored, looked at my watch and found it was two o'clock P. M.

When I reached home, at the usual dinner hour, Effie met me, smiling.

"Did the new girl come?" I inquired.

"No, I haven't seen any."

I did not give vent to pent-up emotions. I only played the sympathizing husband, and, somewhat crestfallen, started on another tour of the same nature the next morning.

Without confessing it to Effie, I determined to save time and steps and try the intelligence office. A polite clerk at the entrance stopped me and registered my name, then I passed into the main room. A clerk sitting by a table gave me a card. I was to take a seat correspondingly numbered. The room was filled with ladies talking to servants and all sorts of persons hurrying hither and thither. A clerk spoke through a tube and called for a chamber-maid and waitress for number twelve. In the course of ten minutes a tall, greasy-looking Irish girl came toward me.

"If you are sent to speak to me," I said, "go back and tell them you won't suit. Let another come as quickly as possible."

Instead of obeying, she dropped into a chair near by.

"Won't suit, eh! What ails me?"

"You are not neatly clad."

"Oh, that stuff on my dress is nothing; it will come out with a little sponging—"

I stalked the room, and advised the young man in attendance to send a decent girl to me in short order. I conferred with six before I gave my address and sent one to my wife. The little performance occupied an hour and a half, and my office work crowded me the rest of the day. I dined down town. Having lost my key, I rung the bell of my own door about half-past nine. The discarded Jane admitted me.

"Effie, how is this?" I asked, before taking a chair.

"Oh, nothing extraordinary. The girl you sent came. She seemed perfectly satisfied with the place, but in the course of half an hour we heard the lower door slam, and saw her running down the street. Towards evening Jane came for money, and not having enough by me, I detained her until you should come in. She went to work of her own accord, has put the house in order, and assisted me in every way possible."

"Keep her if she will stay. I will agree never to complain even of hair-pins in the gravy. A dishcloth or two in the pudding will be a trifling grievance compared with what I have been through during the last six-and-thirty hours. And, Effie, say to your lady friends that if their husbands are too exacting in little things, and meddle in domestic matters where it would be more sensible for them to mind their own business, you know of a remedy."

I have always been a model; I am now one of the most docile of husbands. And it pays. Effie looks five years younger, and the servants no longer creep round the house in constant fear of making discoveries to their disadvantage. A few words of well-timed commendation has cured Jane of her chief fault, and, since I have seriously thought about it, I believe her to be an excellent servant.—Appleton's Journal.

RELIGIOUS CENSUS OF ENGLAND.—The London Nonconformist has now completed its religious census, and published tables showing the religious accomodation furnished in eighty-four towns of England and Wales, excluding the metropolis. The population of the eighty-four towns is 5,913,919. The number of places of worship is 4,843; the number of sittings is 2,644,523, and the proportion of sittings to population is 44 per cent. Adopting the old rule that only 58 per cent. of the entire population require religious accommodation, by reason of the necessary absence of children, invalids, and others, it would appear that there is a deficiency in these eighty-four towns of only 14 per cent. In the census of 1851, which has been taken as the basis of the comparison now instituted, no separate returns were made for seven of these towns, and consequently a comparison can now only be made in the case of seventy-seven of them. This comparison shows that in the last twenty-one years there has been an increase of 1,527 places of worship, and of 829,337 sittings. The population of the towns has increased at the rate of 34 per cent., while the religious accommodation has augmented at the rate of 49 per cent. The comparison as between the Established Church and the unestablished churches foots up as follows: Established Church, 1,508 places of worship, 1,040,672 sittings; unestablished churches, 3,335 places of worship, 1,603,851 sittings; in favor of unestablished churches, 1,827 places of worship, 536,179 sittings. Thus it appears that in these eighty-four towns, with an aggregate population of nearly 6,000,000, the Establishment provides two-fifths of the means of public worship, and the religious bodies outside of the Establishment three-fifths. The increase of the various religious bodies within these twenty-one years is stated to be as follows: The Established Church, 34 per cent.; the Roman Catholic Church, 80 per cent.; the Unitarians, 34 per cent.; the Wesleyans, 34 per cent.; the Congregationalists, 60 per cent.; and the Baptists, 53 per cent.

PATENT SHOES.—A patent for a new shoe has been issued. An agent of the invention called to explain it and get a letter of approval. First, an extensive circular was shown. Upon reading this I found it was intended to give the philosophy of the invention. The agent followed with an hour of earnest, almost passionate, exhortation. In the first place, there was the fashionable shoe, with its narrow sole, pointed toe, high, contracted heel, etc. These deformed the toes, produced corns, weakened the ankles and spoiled the legs. To all this I fully assented. Then came the explanation of the new invention. This was very long, and had reference to the osseous structure of the heel, and the arch of the foot and the toes, and the ligaments, longitudinal, oblique, transverse and otherwise; of the action of this part upon that part, and that part upon this part, and the need of support at this point, while that portion was acting thus and so upon this portion. I heard it all with a sincere desire to learn something.

The longer I live, the more I learn to respect the wisdom of the Creator. The human foot is perfect in its service until we begin to protect, support and fix it. All that is wanted is liberty. When you are measured for shoes, stand upon a sheet of paper, let your foot spread out as wide as it will, mark about it, and have the sole made exactly that size. Then have the heel made broad and low, and you have a shoe which gives your foot liberty. That's all the science and sense which it is possible to put into shoes. The matter of ornamentation is another question; but as to a "scientific shoe," your feet simply need room, and they will take care of themselves. You might as well talk of a scientific pitcher to hold a quart of soft soap. All that is needed is that the pitcher should be big enough to hold it. The foot asks for room. Having that, it will take care of all the scientific questions without asking your assistance.—Dio Lewis.

FAGGING.—During our residence at Charter-House school (1847-1853) there was an immense deal of fagging, which has been, we believe very properly, much diminished. Under boys were called in to perform many menial offices which should have been done by servants. The task-work which by "grown-boys" was most disliked was what was called being basonite. This duty devolved upon the twelve junior boys occupying what was known as "the under bedroom." To this hour we recall with horror how on a gloomy, foggy, wintry Monday morning we remembered on waking that it was our basonite week—for a fresh set of three went to work each Monday morning—and that we must get up and call the monitors. This basonite duty consisted of the most elaborate valeting. Each monitor's clothes were brushed, warm water was fetched and poured out for him, and everything so arranged that he might lie in bed up to the last possible moment, and then—one small boy being ready with his coat, another with his waistcoat, and a third with his cap—be able to dress in five minutes and rush into school. At mid-day, when the monitors washed their hands for dinner, similar work had to be done, and again in the evening, when they washed their hands for supper. The only set-off to all this was that each monitor had been a basonite, and each basonite had a very good chance of becoming a monitor. But it was carrying the fagging system to far too great an extent, and the practice is now greatly modified.

An upper boy had two fags, the inferior of the two being called his tea-fag. A good feeling nearly always existed between master and fag, inasmuch as the former generally selected a boy he liked; and indeed in many cases the connection engendered a warm and lasting regard between the parties. The fag had access to his master's study, could retreat there to do his lessons in quiet, and not unfrequently was assisted in them by his master.—Lippincott's Magazine.

A MEMORIAL OF ALICE AND PHŒBE CARY, with some of their later poems. By Mary Clemmer Ames. Illustrated with two portraits on steel. New York: Hurd & Houghton. From A. L. Roman & Co.

Every one who has read and appreciated Mrs. Ames' brilliant letters from Washington to the New York Independent, as also her beautiful "Eirene" published a couple of years ago, can not fail to hail with delight whatever comes from her gifted pen; and the deep interest which all lovers of literature must feel in reading a memorial of the Cary sisters will be heightened by the knowledge that it is written by one who is an attractive writer and at the same time the intimate friend of both sisters. Mrs. Ames never obtrudes herself upon her readers, as is the case with too many biographers—Forster for instance—and while her memorial is devoted to the inner life of the sisters, rather than to a recital of each one's private and public history in all their details, it is of great interest throughout. It is impossible to read the lives of two such beautiful, loving, and intellectual natures without being benefited thereby. Some critic has said that the poems which are included in the volume partake of the nature of padding, but we think the remark uncalled for. They seem appropriate just as they occur, and we feel double the interest in them which we should, were they in a separate volume, to be read when the incidents which called them forth were unfamiliar to us.

We give one extract from the volume:

ALICE CARY'S WORKING ROOM.—Beside one of these windows stood Alice's desk. It was of rosewood, finely finished and commodious; a bureau, desk, and book-case combined. The drawers below were the receptacle of her beloved India shawls, for she had the same love for them that some women have for diamonds, and others for rare paintings. The drawer of her desk contained her manuscript papers: the shelves above, the books that she was reading, and her books of reference; while above all hung a favorite landscape in water-colors. On the other side of the mantel-piece stood corresponding bureau and shelves, filled with books. Here were copies of her own and Phœbe's works, which never appeared in the library or drawing-room below. Above these book-shelves, hung an autumn landscape. On one side of the alcove there was an engraving of Correggio's "Christ;" on the other, a copy of "The Hugenot Lovers." Beside the hall door, opposite her desk, there hung a portrait in oil of their father, by the hand which painted "Early Sorrow;" on the other side of the door there was at one time a portrait of Phœbe. Easy chairs and foot-stools completed the furniture of this room, in which Alice Cary lived for fifteen years, the room in which she slowly and sadly relinquished life, and in which at last she died.

At the opposite end of the hall was a room which corresponded exactly with that of Alice, the room which had been Elmina's, in which she died, and which from her death was "Phœbe's room." Rich purple curtains used to hang from the alcove, shading the face of the lovely sufferer, and curtains of the same hue draped the windows. But Phœbe eschewed all draperies, and, summer or winter, nothing denser than white shades and the thinnest of lace curtains hung between her and the strongest sunshine. A bright red carpet, relieved by small medallions, covered the floor. Over the mantelpiece for a long time hung a superb copy of "The Hugenot Lovers," in a gilt frame. This was replaced at last by a copy of Turner, in oil, a resplendent Venetian scene. Beside the alcove hung the chromo of Whittier's "Barefoot Boy," which was a great favorite with Phœbe, while clusters of flowers in lithograph and water-colors, added to the bright cheerfulness of the room. Between the windows was a full length mirror; on one side of the room was Phœbe's desk, of the same form and wood, though of a smaller size than that of Alice. In its appointments it was a perfect model of neatness. It was always absolutely in order; while, beside books, its shelves were ornamented with vases and other pretty trifles. On the opposite side of the room stood a table, the receptacle of the latest newspapers, magazines, and novels, that, like the desk, was ever in order, and in addition to its freight of literature always made room for a work-basket well stocked with spools, scissors, and all the implements of an accomplished needle-woman.

A HOUSE OF OUR OWN.—Next to being married to the right person, there is nothing so important in one's life as to live under one's roof. There is something more than a poetical charm in the expression of the wife:

"We have our cosy house; it is thrice dear to us because it is our own. We have bought it with the savings of our earnings. Many were the soda-water fountains, the confectionery saloons, the necessities of the market we had to pass; many a time my noble husband denied himself the comfort of tobacco, wore his old clothes and patched his boot; and I, O me! made my old bonnet do, wore the plainest clothes, did the plainest cooking—saving was the order of the hour, and to have a home of our own had been our united aim. Now we have it; there is no landlord troubling us with raising the rent, and exacting this and that. There is no fear harbored in our bosom that in sickness or old age we will be thrown out of house and home, and the money we have saved to pay rent is sufficient to keep us in comfort in the winter days of life."

What a lesson do the above words teach, and how well it would be if hundreds of families would heed them, and instead of living in rented houses, which take a large share of their capital to furnish, and a quarter of their earnings to pay the rent, dress and eat accordingly, would bravely curtail expenses and concentrate their efforts on having "a home of their own." Better a cottage of their own than a rented palace.

The superfluous blossoms on a fruit tree are meant to symbolize the large way in which God loves to do pleasant things.

Young Married Couples.

DEAR POST:—Once upon a time I spent the evening with a friend, and met there, with a dozen or so others, two young married couples.

One couple was Mr. and Mrs. Smith, the other Mr. and Mrs. Darton.

Mr. Smith and his wife were so much in love with each other that the rest of us were scarcely noticed by either of them. Mr. Smith devoted himself to his wife; 'twas "my dear" this, and "my dear" that; or "my darling" do you think so and so? and Mrs. Smith thought no one was present but "dear John;" sometimes it was "honey," "precious," or "shoog"—(that means sugar, if you please), and once they kissed. Now did you ever know of anything like it? I suppose she must have said something awful sweet; we saw his head "bob," then a "bump," then "smack" they both went; we laughed, but I felt like boxing them both. Now, just as sure as your name is Mr. Post, and mine Daisy Burns, things are different behind the scenes; being at home and abroad, makes just lots of difference.

Mr. and Mrs. Darton were very agreeable. He noticed the rest of us ladies equally as much as his wife, yet paid her due respect at the same time, and she had a word now and then for other gentlemen present. We didn't hear a "my dear" or "honey" from either of them the whole evening, but once when they were alone on the porch—not alone either, for I was there but they didn't know that—I saw him take her little face between his hands and kiss her tenderly and—well it made me feel good, for I knew he meant it.

Not many days afterward Mr. Smith walked in at home.

"Liza," he said to Mrs. Smith, who reclined on the lounge with a late novel, "confound the luck, come here and give me a clean shirt, I'm in a hurry."

"Oh, John," said the affectionate wife, "I'm not going to get up; get it yourself."

"Oh, come on, put down your old book, and"—

"I tell you I'll not do it."

"Well you can let it alone," so John slammed the door and walked off with his soiled shirt.

"Oh, Charlie," said Mrs. Darton, throwing down a book, "I'm so glad you've come. I've been anticipating a lonesome evening—and now you will stay and keep me company, won't you—you dear good husband?"

"Yes, I'm home for the night," said the newly arrived husband, throwing himself in a large rocking-chair and drawing his wife into his arms, "and we'll have a pleasant evening all to ourselves."

And that's just the way.

Now, young married folks, please take a little friendly advice; when you are alone, eat one another up if you want to, who cares; but don't go calling each other "honey," "shoog" and like names in company; for indeed such is worse than one's first sea voyage, to a disinterested party.—Daisy Burns in Saturday Evening Post.

HEALING QUALITIES OF A WELL ROASTED APPLE.—But, ah! when we were so sick. What charm is there in the whole cuisine so succulent and safe for an invalid, as a well-roasted apple? Fever had rendered every liquid food a tedious slop. Jellies were insipid; broth became vapid. The dryness of the tongue, the scum on the mouth, the odiousness of the flavors, threatened to starve you. Mother pondered well. "Johnny, love, wouldn't you like a little of that nice sago?" You shut your mouth, and turned over mournfully. "Try a spoonful of this toast-water!" Your teeth turned on edge. Mother pondered. "How about a roasted apple?" Now it comes. A baked apple? No, you simpleton, nothing of that sort. No clammy mess of pulp settling under a shriveled, but tough and stubborn skin. A roasted apple! beautifully brown on top; with little saccharine bubbles simmering on the brittle surface of a skin that can be pulverized. Juices even more luxurious than when it hung upon the tree! Richness refined. It fetches with it a gush of the old orchard. It perfumes the little stand by the bedside like a bouquet, and says to all the stale, tasteless decoctions, and to all the vials and jars, as to intruders, "Come, get out of this, and let me try."

"Let mother feed you, Johnny. Just a little of this powdered sugar upon it, to soften the acid—not to stifle it." The relish, so keen and pungent—so kindly and sweet—like wit from lover's lips, or teasing from loving eyes!

Mother took the spoon and fed you, with her own white hand, while her eyes filled with tears, and her voice quavered, "Poor Johnny, you have had a hard time." You spoke softly then, "Mother, dear, I'm better now. I will get well, and go into the orchard. O! how nice this tastes. Mother, how green the grass must look, down our lane. Did this apple come off that tree in the lane, do you think, mother? I guess it will have lots on this year. I mean to go there the first time I get out. Mother, dear! I am going to be a better boy when I get well; and I am going to help you as I didn't use to do."

"Yes, Johnny, darling; if God will, we will take a walk together in the lane, and see how that apple-tree gets on." And the soft, white hand put away your heavy hair, and the sweet, holy lips kissed your wan brow—leaving there a tear of gratitude, because "God was making Johnny well."

And you got well. But now, when you walk out, the grass is green over that mother's brow; and when the apple-tree is laden, you pause under the boughs, brush away your own tears, and think of the happy throng, who stand under the "tree of life which bears twelve manner of fruit."

You stand in the mellow silence of an afternoon, and the scented breath of heaven touches you to a throb of pain, while it thrills you with the hallowings of tender thought. That hand that lifted to my lips the nourishment, and softly stroked my brow, has crumbled, folded on the breast. Those lips that spoke so softly and so sweetly, are silent, and so calm. Mother! Have I kept my promises to mother? Mother! God, dear God, let me somewhere see my mother yet again!—From "Apple-Thoughts for Apple-Time," in the Overland Monthly for April.

The world, now-a-days, presses a general education upon us; we need not therefore trouble ourselves further about that, but should rather devote ourselves to specialties.

ANECDOTES.

PRISONS AND BIRDS.—It is very pleasant to have singing birds in our houses, and few people think that the little songsters might prefer the open air and woods to the confinement of a cage. But one who has been shut up in prison himself understands it, like the sailor in the following anecdote:

Soon after the close of the long French war in Europe, a boy stood on one of the bridges that cross the Thames in London, with a number of small birds in a cage for sale.

A sailor, who was passing, observed the little prisoners fluttering about the cage, peeping anxiously through the wires, and manifesting their eager desire to regain their liberty. He stood some time looking at the birds, apparently lost in thought. At length addressing the boy, he said—

"How much do you ask for your birds, my boy."

"Sixpence apiece, sir."

"I don't ask how much apiece," said the sailor; "how much for the lot? I want to buy all hands."

The boy made his caclulations—they came to six shillings.

"There is your money," said the sailor, giving the cash, which the boy received with evident satisfaction.

No sooner was the bargain closed than the sailor opened the cage door, and let all the birds fly away.

The boy astonished, exclaimed—

"Why did you do that, sir? You have lost all your birds."

"I'll tell you why I did it. I was shut up three years in a French prison as a prisoner of war, and I am resolved never to see anything in prison that I can make free."

MISUNDERSTANDING.—A case of misunderstanding occurred up in the country last week.

Riding up to a hotel in Cortland County, we saw the big, smart landlord, with his boys, smoking short pipes on the balcony, while his wife was sweeping around the chairs.

"Halloo! Do you keep this hotel?"

"No, sir, I reckon not; this tavern keeps me."

"I mean, are you master here?"

"Waal, sumtimes I am (looking at the old lady's broom), but I guess the boys an' I run the stable—take your hoss?"

"Got anything to drink round here?"

"Yes, everything drinks round here."

"Any ales?"

"Touch of the rheumatiz myself—folks generally healthy, though."

"I mean have you got any porter?"

"Yes, John's is our porter. Hold his hoss, John."

"I mean, any porter to drink?"

"'Porter to drink?' Why, John can drink, an' ef he can't drink enough, I kin whip a right smart o' licker myself."

"Pshaw, stupid! have I got to come down and see myself?"

"You kin come down, Shaw Stupid, an' see yourself, ef you want to—thar's a good looking-glass in the bar-room."

TOO MUCH CREDIT.—Mr. K., a shrewd and thrifty farmer of Allenborough, owned a large flock of sheep, and one autumn, when it came housing time, he was greatly annoyed upon missing a number of his finest muttons; among them three or four wethers which he had raised and fattened for his own table. He was sure it was not the work of dogs, and the most he could do was to await further developments.

In the following spring, when his sheep were turned out to pasture, he instituted a careful watch, and ere long detected Tom S., a neighboring farmer, in the act of pilfering a sheep; but he made no noise about it at the time. S. was a man well-to-do, and K. did not care to expose him.

Autumn came again, and upon counting up his flock, Mr. K. found eight sheep missing. He made out a bill in due form to Thomas for the eight sheep, and presented it. S. choked and stammered, but did not back down. Like a prudent man he paid the bill, and pocketed the receipt.

Another spring time came, and Mr. K.'s sheep were again turned out. Another autumn came, and the farmer again took an account of his stock, and this time fifteen sheep were missing. As before, he made out the bill to Tom for the whole number missing; but this time Tom objected.

"It is too much of a good thing," said he. "Fifteen sheep! Why, bless your soul, I haven't had a fifth part of 'em."

Mr. K. was inexorable.

"There is the bill," said he, "and I have made it out in good faith. I have made no fuss when my sheep have been missing, because I deemed your credit good and sufficient."

"Well," groaned Tom, with a big gulp, "I suppose I must obey; but," he added, emphatically, "we'll close that account from this time. You have given me too much credit altogether—some other rascal has been stealing on the strength of it."—Western Rural.

WHO HAD A HAND IN IT.—The following squib was "perpetrated" in one of the public schools in Philadelphia County. It seems that a few hours' exemption from mischief had greatly enlarged the bump of "trickery" in the upper stories of some of the young "ideas," and they took and smeared the balustrades from top to bottom with tar, and when the master came in, he very naturally laid his hand on it when he surmounted the stairs. He was soon aware of his sad misbap, but said nothing about it until the schollars had been called in and taken their seats, when he acquainted them with the fact, and said he would give any one five dollars who would inform him who had a hand in it. At this moment, up jumped a little red headed urchin, who said:

"Ther, you seth you'll give any one five dollars who'll tell who had a hand in it."

"Yes."

"Now, thir, you'll not whip me, will you?"

"No."

"Well, thir,—. Now, you won't whip?"

"You young scamp, I'll lick you if you don't tell pretty soon."

"Thir, y-o-u—oh, I don't like to."

"Go on, or I'll skin you alive!"

"Well, thir, you had a hand in it!"

The master gave in, and forked over.

HOUSEHOLD.

AFFECTING CASE OF SUICIDE BY STARVATION.—Hufeland, who records a case of suicide by starvation, says that "after an abstinence of eighteen days the man still breathed, but expired immediately after a little soup had been forced down his throat." On his person they found a diary, written in pencil, from which the following are extracts:

"Sept. 16th.—The generous philanthropist who may find my corpse is requested to bury it, and to repay himself for the trouble by my clothes, my purse, my pocket-book and knife. I have not committed suicide, but I die of starvation because bad men have deprived me of my fortune, and I do not choose to be a burden on my friends. It is unnecessary to open my body, since I have said I die of starvation.

"Sept. 17th.—What a night I have passed! It has rained. I am wet through. I have been so cold.

"Sept. 18th.—The cold rain forced me to get up and walk. My walk was very feeble. Thirst made me lick up the water which still rested on the mushrooms. How nasty that water was!

"Sept. 19th.—The cold, the length of the nights, the slightness of my clothing, which makes me feel the cold more keenly, have given me great suffering.

"Sept. 20th.—In my stomach there is terrible commotion—hunger and, above all, thirst become more and more frightful. For three days there has been no rain. Would that I could lick up the water from the mushrooms now!

"Sept. 21st.—Unable to endure the tortures of thirst, I crawled with great labor to an inn, where I bought a bottle of beer, which did not quench my thirst. In the evening I drank some water from the pump near the inn where I bought the beer.

"Sept. 23d.—Yesterday I could scarcely move, much less write. To-day thirst made me go to the pump. The water was icy cold, and made me sick. I had convulsions until evening; nevertheless, I returned to the pump.

"Sept. 26th.—My legs seem dead. For three days I have been unable to go to the pump. Thirst increases. My weakness is such that I could scarcely trace these lines to-day.

"Sept. 29th.—I have been unable to move. It has rained. My clothes are not dry. No one would believe how much I suffer. During the rain some drops fell into my mouth, which did not quench my thirst. Yesterday I saw a peasant ten yards from me. I bowed to him. He returned my salutation. It is with great regret that I die. Weakness and convulsions prevent my writing more. I feel this is the last time." . . .

This pathetic case illustrates, as indeed all other cases do, the truth that thirst is far more terrible than hunger. The man's resolution was not strong enough to resist the desire for drink, yet he never seems to have faltered in his determination to refrain from food. It will be further noticed that he ceased to complain of the cold when thirst set in fiercely, because then fever had also supervened.—To-day.

Corned Beef.—In cooking corned beef, at this season of the year so delicious, it should be put into boiling water when put on to cook, and when it is done it should remain in the pot until cold. This is the whole secret of having corned beef juicy and full flavored, instead of the contrary.

Cake.—In cake making never beat the eggs and sugar together before adding other ingredients, as the sugar hardens the eggs. In using flavoring, one must depend upon taste instead of directions, as some extracts are much stronger than others. If, in baking layers of cake, it breaks in coming out of the tins, either make it less rich or add more egg.

How to cook Hominy.—Wash slightly in cold water, and soak twelve hours in tepid soft water, then boil slowly from three to six hours in same water, with plenty more added from time to time, with great care to prevent burning. Don't salt while cooking, as that or hard water will harden the corn. So it will peas and beans, dry or green, and rice.

To boil a Turkey.—Stuff a young turkey, weighing six or seven pounds, with bread, butter, salt, pepper, and minced parsley; skewer up the legs and wings as if to roast; flour a cloth and pin around it. Boil it forty minutes; then set off the kettle and let it stand closely covered half an hour more. The steam will cook it sufficiently. To be eaten with drawn butter.

An improved method of cooking beets is to bake them. It requires about two hours to a medium sized beet. I hardly think any person will resort to the old method of boiling them, after eating one meal of baked beets.

All salted provisions should be watched, and see that they are kept under the brine, for if one piece of meat lies up it will spoil the whole barrel. If the brine looks bloody, it must be scalded and more salt added; when cold, pour back.

PAPER CAR-WHEELS.—The numerous uses to which paper and paper-pulp are applied in the various departments of general industry, form one of the most interesting chapters in the history of recent mechanical and chemical progress. We have paper doors and window-blinds, paper billiard-balls, boats, and wash-basins, paper clothes and curtains, and, not the least important, as recent experiments have demonstrated paper car-wheels. From an exchange we learn that a Connecticut railroad is about to make trial of these new wheels, which have been known to car-builders for some time, though their general introduction has been hindered by the expense. These wheels are made by the following process: Sheets of common straw paper are forced into a compact mass by a pressure of three hundred and fifty tons. The solid mass of paper thus formed is placed in a lathe and turned perfectly round. After which, a hub is forced into a hole in the center, under a pressure of twenty-five tons. This paper wheel, or disk, is now forced, under a pressure of two hundred and fifty tons, into a steel tire, with a one-half inch bevel upon its circumference. Two circular iron plates are then bolted on to the tire to keep the paper filling in place. By this arrangement the steel tire rests upon the paper only, and is thus rendered more elastic, a quality of great importance, as regards both the safety and comfort of travelers.

SAN FRANCISCO MARKET.

There is a gleam of sunshine observable in some departments of trade, where business begins to loom up a little. However, the spring trade is very backward in opening, more so than usual; yet we find, in conversing with some of our more intelligent merchants, that it is but a question of time with them—a few weeks' delay only—before the interior demand for staple goods will set in with its usual vigor, and give to all evidence of the steady onward growth and stability of the Pacific Slope. This is unmistakably true of the Pacific States and Territories. The bountiful harvests of grain and gold gathered here the past year have added great wealth to the masses, and reduced measurably the indebtedness of our people, and placed us financially in the front rank of States. Our future is certainly bright and glowing. There is scarcely a question as to the immensity of our cereal crops the coming harvest, and this vast amount, to be added to the export values of 1872, will certainly place vast sums to our credit.

The great bulk of our cereals having been marketed at good prices, it is natural for us now to turn a wistful eye to the growing crops, and, in doing so, we are met with cheering reports from all parts of the State. Thus far we have failed to discover any unfavorable signs. The Wheat sown on the Pacific Slope covers many more thousands of acres than ever before, and the Wheat plant now presents a very luxuriant growth, and at this writing everything betokens a year of plenty. This remark will apply to all crops now planted. The ground is well watered and the country presents a cheering aspect. Increased attention is also being given to the planting of Cotton and Tobacco, with every assurance of success.

FLOUR—The market favors the buyer. We note a sale to Government of 1,200 sks, each 100 lbs net, Vallejo Starr Mills Extra, at $2 62 ½ sack, equivalent to $5 ¼ 100 lbs. This is the lowest price reached in a long time. 1,000 bbls National Mills Superfine, for export, sold at $5. The ship Acapulco, for Queenstown, carried the bulk of 5,837 bbls Starr Extra—a much less quantity than was expected. The steamship Alaska, for Hongkong, carried 16,320 qr sks Superfine and 627 bbls Extra; also, to Japan, 210 bbls, 210 hf sks, and 1,183 qr sks. The Clara Bell, for Manila, carried the equivalent of 2,900 bbls. We quote Golden Age and Golden Gate, and other fancy brands Extra, at $5 50@5 75; Extra Superfine, $5@5 25; Superfine, $4 50@4 80 ₰ 196 lbs. Our Flour exports for the nine months of the current harvest year aggregate 213,000 bbls, and of which 35,982 bbls were shipped during the month of March. This Flour movement is exclusive of that sent East overland, and which is of some importance, including Marysville and Tehama Mills, to the extent of several thousand bbls. By last accounts the latter was selling in Chicago at $12 ₰ barrel, currency.

WHEAT—Business is less urgent now than at any period for nine months previously. Our total exports for the first nine months of the current harvest year aggregate (Flour included) 9,228,200 centals, of the value of $16,574,458. Our total receipts for the same period, 9,878,600 centals. Adding Flour reduced to Wheat, and the aggregate of the two is 10,945,600 centals Wheat. Oregon receipts for the same period approximate 60,000 bbls Flour and 12,200 centals Wheat, making a grand aggregate of Wheat handled here the last nine months 10,206,000 centals, being a large excess over any previous like period. There is considerable surplus remaining in the State yet to be exported, and vessels enough on the berth or chartered to convey the same to the United Kingdom. Our market is at this writing very stock under the influence of unfavorable Liverpool advices. Last quotations, 11s 4d@11s 6d for average; 11s 9d@12s for California Club. The sales for the period under review, so far as made public, include 35,000 sks choice at $1 85; 10,000 sks fair to good at $1 80@1 82½; Coast ranges at $1 60@1 75, according to quality. At the close, we quote choice samples milling at $1 82½@1 85 ₰ ctl, with limited offerings.

BARLEY—The market is dull and inactive for all but the very best bright heavy Brewing. This we quote at $1 40 for export. A sale of 1,500 sacks reported at $1 42½, time. Two small vessels have been cleared for Melbourne—Henrietta Behn with 19,245 ctls, and the St. Lucien with 7,764 ctls; also, Stormy Petrel, for Lyttleton, N. Z., with 15,400 ctls. It is questionable whether more than one more small vessel is dispatched to the Colonies this season. Coast Feed is very plentiful, and hard to sell at prices at all satisfactory; quotable at $1 15@1 20 for dark, and for medium to good $1 25 to $1 30 for heavy. A sale of Bay Brewing at Santa's Station is reported at $1 17½, which is equivalent to $1 30 here.

OATS—Receipts from Oregon are of lessened importance, the last arrivals selling in lots at $2 35@2 40; California, $2 20@2 25 ₰ cental. Samples from Nebraska have been exhibited on 'Change of good quality, and it is confidently expected that supplies will soon reach us from Omaha by rail.

CORN—The supply of Yellow from the south is liberal, and the market dull at $1 20 ₰ ctl. Round Yellow Bay $1 25 ₰ ctl. At the close, small sales of Southern Yellow at $1 15@1 17½.

BRAN AND MIDDLINGS—Of the former sales from Wharf at $17; mill price, $18. Feed Middlings, $24@26 ₰ ton.

HAY—The supply is free, and prices ease off for the lower grades. We now quote the range of the market $13 50@22 50 ₰ ton. Cargo sales of medium quality Oat at $14 50.

WOOL—The receipts of spring clip will from this time on be liberal. We now wait the appearance of Eastern buyers. Orders are here, it is true, but at very low limits. The stock of last year's spring clip is yet considerable, but the demand is light. Sales for the week approximate 50,000 lbs spring and fall fleece, upon terms reserved. We quote this season's clip at 18@22c for average; extra choice, 23@25c; burry and inferior very unsalable at low figures. Quotations nominal.

HIDES—The market is said to be dull at a slight decline. In making our quotations of 18@19½c, it is understood that they are of the "usual selection"—that is, if "culls," they are one third off from the gross weight. All dry Hides are thus dealt in, both here and at the East, and it is becoming more common to do the same with green salted, the latter generally used here by local tanners and not shipped, while at present tanners are not very sharp buyers. The bulk of the dry Hides sold here are shipped East. Sales for the week, 3,000, about equally divided between dry and wet. We quote the latter at 8½@9½c.

BEANS—We note sales of 200 sacks Bayos at 2½c. There is more tone to the market. The stock is light and in few hands, being well concentrated. We quote small White and Pea, at $4 00@4 10; large Butter, $4 75@5; Bayo, $3 75@3 75; Pink, $3 75; Red, $3 50; Lima, $4 50@5; Colored, $3 50@4 ₰ 100 lbs.

POTATOES—The appearance of new crop Mission lessens the demand for old. We now quote Humboldts at 90@95c for good, and for best, $1 05@1 10. Petalums and other kinds range from 62½@87½c, according to quality.

ONIONS—Sales of Oregon at $2 50@2 75. Choice California, ₰ 100 lbs, at $2@2 50, in lots.

HONEY—Choice Los Angeles and San Diego, 22@30c; choice Northern, 18@22½c; dark, 12½@15c; strained, 10@17c ₰ lb. Comb in cases, 5 ₰ tins, $9 ₰ case of 2 dozen.

BEESWAX—There is very little demand. The stock on hand is light, and prices steady at 30@33c ₰ lb for choice.

RYE—Receipts are light and the price nominal—say $2 50 ₰ ctl.

BUCKWHEAT—The supply exceeds the demand; price $1 25@1 30 ₰ ctl.

MUSTARD SEED, ETC.—The supplies are more free. The arrivals recently from the South have been large; prices, however, rule low; in fact, none but the very best quality will sell at any price. We quote clean Flax at 3c; Canary, 2½c; White Mustard, 1½@2¼c, and Brown do, 2@3c ₰ lb.

OIL CAKE MEAL—The mill price to dealers is $30 ₰ ton, less customary discount to the trade.

BROOMCORN—The Brush is held at $40@90 ₰ ton.

GRITS, ETC.—Our local mills furnish full supplies of choice quality. Cracked Wheat—In pockets of 10 lbs, from mill, 3½c ₰ lb. Pearl Barley—Selling at 6c ₰ lb for the three numbers. Split Peas—The price is 5c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Rye Meal—For 10-lb pockets, 3½c ₰ lb. Oat Meal—Selling at 6c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Hominy—Large and small is selling at 4c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Farina—The price is 5c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Graham Flour—From mill, $5 ₰ bbl, and 3½c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Rye Flour—Selling at 4c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets from mill. Buckwheat Flour—From mill, 4c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets. Rice Flour—The price is 12c ₰ lb for 10-lb pockets.

TALLOW—Is plentiful, and dull of sale at 7@7½c for crude, and 9@9¼c for refined.

HOPS—Small sales of California at 40@45c; stock light.

POULTRY—The supply is very light. Prices at date: Hens and Roosters, $9 00@9 50, as to size; Spring Chickens, $6@7 50; Ducks, tame, $10@12; Geese, tame, $3@3 50 ₰ pair; Turkeys, 20@22c ₰ lb; dressed Turkeys, 22@25c ₰ lb; Hare, $3@4; Doves, 75c@$1 ₰ dozen.

CATTLE—Beef is plenty, selling by the quarter at 3@5c. Calves are scarce at 8@10c. Mutton, 7c. Lambs, 10c. Hogs on foot are plentiful, but the demand is light; prices, 5½@6½c for live, and dressed, 7½@9½c.

DAIRY PRODUCTS—The daily receipts of Butter are of considerable importance, and the price believed to have touched bed-rock for the season, but to accomplish this dairymen have been obliged to begin packing and pickling earlier than usual, and this to a considerable extent, and this course was absolutely necessary to prevent prices of gilt-edged from going below 25c. We note a purchase of a car load extra choice roll for St. Louis. This makes a total shipment East in March of 100,000 lbs, chiefly to New York, and all of selected dairies and California's best, and we hope to hear a good account of it. We now quote fresh roll table Butter at 22½@27½c. California Cheese, 12@14½c; choice new, 15c; Eastern Cheese, 15@17c for good to choice. Fresh California Eggs, 26@27c; 8,000 doz Oregon, received by steamer, selling at 20@22½c. Eastern now arriving.

FRUIT—The Pacific brought up this week from Los Angeles 878 boxes Oranges, which came to a quick market, selling readily at $3@5. Los Angeles Lemons command $3 50@4 ₰ box. The Oriflamme brought 251 boxes Oregon Apples, about the last of the season, which sold for $1 50@1 90 ₰ box from the wharf. Following are current quotations: Apples—Choice, $2@2 25 ₰ box; common, $1@1 50 ₰ box. Strawberries, 20@40c ₰ lb. Pears—Bourre d'Aleneon, 60@75 ₰ box. Eastern Cranberries, $15 ₰ bbl. Oranges—Los Angeles, $2@3 ₰ M. Lemons—Sicily, $14@15 ₰ box; Los Angeles, $3@5 ₰ M. Limes, $15@20 ₰ M. Bananas, $2@4 ₰ bunch. Cocoanuts, $60@70 ₰ 100. Dried Fruit—Apples, 6@7c ₰ lb in sacks; 9@9c in boxes; Peach, 6@8c in sacks; 8@10c in boxes; Plums, 6@8c—pitted, 3@10c; Raisins, 8@12½c; Figs, black, 8@10c; Figs, white, 12@20c.

WIT AND HUMOR.

A Chicago poet begins an apostrophe to the ocean with "Prodigious dampness!"

A cheerful giver put the following note in a pair of pantaloons sent to the Michigan sufferers: "There, take 'em. Last pair I've got. Don't get burned out again."

A parent who has fifteen daughters has poisoned his dog, taken the locks off the doors, and hung rope-ladders over his door-yard fence by the dozen, and still his provision bill is as large as ever.

The Connecticut agriculturist who last week found a five-dollar gold piece in the crop of one of his chickens remarks that for its size it's one of the most profitable crops ever produced on his farm.

"I wish you would not give me such short weight for my money," said a customer to a grocer, who had an outstanding bill against him. "And I wish you wouldn't give me such long wait for mine," replied the grocer.

A runaway thief having applied to a blacksmith for work, the latter showed him some handcuffs, and desired to know if he made such kind of work.

"Why, yes, sir," said the other, scratching his pate, "I've had a hand in 'em."

The Morristown Herald is in receipt of a perfumed note asking: "Why does Mr. Byron, who used to write such nice, sweet poetry, keep so quiet of late?" The editor replied that one reason is, he is dead. He died before the burning of Chicago.

When you have a bone on your plate, and are obliged to take it up in your fingers, don't neglect to mention that "fingers were made before knives and forks." The novelty of the remark will immediately strike the company very happily.

A general was inspecting some military stables. "What do I see there?" he said, in tones of thunder, to a sergeant. "Cobwebs?" "Yes, sir," was the respectful reply. "We keep them there to catch the flies, and prevent their teasing the horses."

A farmer recklessly publishes the following challenge: "I will bet $42.25 that my hired man can take longer to go to the harvest-field, get back to dinner quicker, eat more, do less, and bear down harder on a panel of the fence, than any other hired man within fifteen miles of the flag-staff in our town."

A young lady who has just returned from Europe advises her friends not to go there, "unless you are sure that you know enough to appreciate the beauties of Europe. It lends such a charm to Italy to remember that among those groves of olives the immortal Beethoven sculptured the Medicean Venus, and Shakespeare composed the sublime poem of Paradise Lost."

FOSTER'S CASE.—Governor Dix has, as we anticipated he would, disregarded the decision of the extraordinary tribunal described by us last week on the degree of Foster's guilt, and has refused to commute his sentence. We trust Foster's fate will be a warning to all roughs. We will take the liberty of adding that we hope his case will bring wisdom to a large body of clergymen, lawyers, and kind-hearted persons generally, who are in the habit of signing petitions for pardon. To the ministers in particular who mix themselves up in these matters, we would say that their conduct is very mischievous. In the first place, their letters and petitions are not candid and truthful, and hardly can be, when the writers are acting as pleaders, and this brings discredit on their profession. In the next place, they help to create distrust of the law and its administrators, and to confuse the moral notions of the poor and ignorant, by the notorious fact that the cases in which Protestant ministers and members of the wealthier class generally display their interest and "work" for pardons, are usually cases in which the offender has had every advantage in the way of money and education, and is blessed or cursed with wealth and "influential" relatives. Witness the Stokes case, and Foster case, and—we hope we shall not have to say—the Stokes case. On the other hand, when a poor devil who has had no teaching of any kind, and whom poverty and all its temptations have followed from the cradle, kills somebody, he is left to his fate without a murmur. No lawyers overhaul the statutes for him, no ministers pray for him or weep for him, no editorials rend the air in his behalf.

We would also advise all sensible men and women who have sympathy to spare, to pour it out in all murder cases first of all on the unhappy victim who has been taken off without a moment's warning, next on his poor family, and finally on the millions of decent men and women who throng our streets day and night relying on the law for security, their pockets filled not with "deadly weapons," but with the tools of honest trades and the hard earnings of honest toil, and their heads filled with dreams of affection and the plans and schemes of useful industry and economy. We can not watch over them too carefully, and feel for them too tenderly; and it is only after doing our whole duty to them that we ought to go to the Tombs to save the men who have been cracking their skulls or shooting them down. We are told that the murderers now in the Tombs, who have for the last fortnight been very cheerful, became very "silent and thoughtful" when the news of Governor Dix's refusal in Foster's case arrived. This is very singular, if it be true, as we are assured, that murderers dread imprisonment for life more than hanging; or more singular still, if, as we are also assured, they do not care when they commit murder whether they are hanged or not.—The Nation.

FARM AND GARDEN.

KEROSENE FOR PARASITES, ETC.—Eds. Country Gentleman: Seeing so many articles about killing lice on cattle, fowls, etc., I cannot resist offering a gratuitous receipt in connection with the subject. Almost from the first introduction of the kerosene burning fluid, or "kerosene," for short, I fancied, without being able to offer scientific reasons for my ideas, that it was good stuff to use about animals, plants, etc.—always with some judgment about the latter, however. I would like to slip in a word here to the effect that dry applications are very doubtful in my observation, when employed to worry and destroy parasites upon animals or plants. I have seen chickens raised in the gas-works yard, where the lime and sulphur dusts and gases would almost choke a mere visitor, alive with lice, and rats burrowing almost in the lime, all thriving (the rats and lice) in a most magnificent manner. A bug will roll in a keg of sulphur for hours and hours (try it if you doubt it), and then have energy enough to climb out and never mind it. You must have something that goes on them and goes into them. Kerosene does this. It is the cheapest thing, all things taken into consideration, that can be used. Facts are stubborn things, and I state that I have used it by the quart upon the neck, mane, and other portions of a horse, and afterwards curry-combed, while wet, handfuls of lice off the animal—(not my horse when he got so). I have taken a basinful and an old stump of a broom, and scoured a Chester sow thoroughly all over, and the huge side-traveling black lice with which she was covered were knocked perfectly cold, and gave up the ghost. I have anointed hens and young chickens, choosing a fine sunny day for the latter, and the little fellows immediately begin thriving; it will not bring a dead chicken to life, however, and let no one expect this in putting it on to chickens in a dying state. Some persons imagine it to possess greatly irritating properties, and I have had even physicians to caution me about it, saying it would raise a blister. In my experience, I never discovered any bad effect whatever, and I have washed my face and neck and arms copiously with it at repeated intervals, during nights of wakefulness on James River, in order to prevent being devoured by the Drewry's Bluff mosquitoes. No discernible inconvenience ever attended its use, either on the feathered tribe, the four-footed animals, or myself.

TO HAVE EGGS DURING THE WINTER.—There has been a good deal said about how to make hens lay during winter, and I venture to say I have seen a hundred articles on the subject. Some of the ways spoken of appeared so reasonable that I tried them, but have never yet discovered a sure way to make hens lay when you want them; if I could I should make a fortune in no time, with eggs at three dollars per dozen. But I have found out how to have hens that will lay in the winter. I noticed that certain hens laid at certain seasons, and did so for several years, and that if a person had a chance to pick he might find two or more in a hundred that would be sure to lay in any month of the year. I further find that if such fowls are used to breed from, and such pullets saved as proved winter layers, and also bred from, in a few years eggs would be plentiful during the winter—if they could get any food to make eggs from. These winter layers, however, I notice, are not much for summer, though some on hatching. —Country Gentleman.

THINNING FLOWER BUDS.—As it is an established fact that a thorough thinning out of fruit on a tree causes that remaining to grow to greater perfection, so the same process will apply to plants producing flowers. When the rose-buds are beginning to form, go over the bushes and remove fully one-half, leaving only the largest and best; cut off the bloom as fast as it fades, and you will have finer and larger roses, and the season of bloom be prolonged.

Balsams, started early in heat and planted out when the weather gets settled, will begin to bloom in a few weeks. These will bear an unmerciful amount of pruning of their branches, and bloom abundantly for it. When the flowers begin to fade, they should be removed, if it is desired to keep up the yield. This process of thinning will apply equally to many other plants.

STONE COAL FOR PLANTS.—A writer in the Revue Horticole, states that he purchased a very fine rosebush, full of buds, and after anxiously waiting their maturing, was greatly disappointed when this took place to find the flowers small, insignificant in appearance, and of a dull, faded color. Incited by the suggestion of a friend, he then tried the experiment of filling in the top of the pot around the bush to the depth of half an inch with finely pulverized stone coal. In the course of a few days he was astonished at seeing the roses assume a beautiful red hue, as brilliant and lively as he could desire.

STEAM TRACTION.—Prof. R. W. Thurston, of the Stevens Institute, recently delivered an address before the polytechnic branch of the American Institute, in which he stated that, for heavy truckage on common roads and streets, the steam traction engine may be used with an economy of seventy-five per cent. over the cost of employing horses. In other words, steam can be employed at only one-fourth of the present expense of horses. Subsequently, the subject of steam street-cars and carts was talked over, and one of the members expressed the original opinion, that the reason why horses were frightened at the steamers was because the animals were superstitious. They saw the machines were without horses, and instantly assumed that the movement was the work of the devil.

One Moment in Heaven.

FROM A DANISH LEGEND.

Once two young men promised each other, that however far the distance might be that separated them, and wherever they might be in the world, the one should come to the other's wedding. But one died, and years passed away before the other married. Now it came to pass, that when he was sitting at the wedding-table, beside his bride, and the feast was almost at an end, that the bridegroom saw his deceased friend enter the room—but nobody else could see him. The bridegroom rose, and took him out of doors.

"I was coming to thy wedding, as I had promised you," said the friend.

"Well," said the bridegroom, "and how are you pleased where you are now?"

The friend answered, "Words cannot express how well and happy I am in my home. You may come with me, if you wish, and judge for yourself? Come, follow me only one moment."

"Yes, I should like to go with you," answered the bridegroom, "but I am now to dance with my bride."

"But not right away," said the friend; "come, follow me."

And then they went together to heaven. Everything was so beautiful, so glorious there, that no tongue can tell. The friend went to the bridegroom and said: "Hasten, thy bride awaits thee." But he answered, "Oh, I have only been here one moment." And the friend came again; "Hasten," said he, "they are all searching after thee." But he answered again, "Oh, I have only been here a little moment." And the friend came for the third time. "Now you have to return."

And he came again to the earth, to the wedding-scene. Everything seemed changed to him. He did neither see the wedding carriage, nor did he hear the music. He became quite uneasy, and asked a woman whom he saw coming from the house, "Is here not a wedding to-day?"

"A wedding?" said the woman, "no; in this house has no wedding been held for many, many years. My grandmother told me, that when she was a child, more than a hundred years ago, a wedding was held in this house, but, at once the bridegroom disappeared, just before he should dance with his bride, and he did never return."

So he became aware that he had been in Heaven for a hundred years, and that all his friends had left the earth. And he prayed to our Lord, that he might go back from whence he came—and his prayer was heard.

QUEEN VICTORIA THIRTY-FOUR YEARS AGO.—When Queen Victoria delivered her first speech from the throne, on the first opening of parliament in 1838, after her accession, the scene in the House of Lords, as witnessed from the ambassadors' box, was extremely brilliant and striking. As the youthful queen, then in her teens, advanced, there was a very slight nervousness perceptible in her countenance, while the utmost stillness prevailed through the House. When about to ascend the steps of the throne, her foot caught in her robes, and she tripped slightly, causing a momentary suffusion, but regained her foothold in an instant, and took her seat with perfect ease and self-possession, after which, in the sweetest tone, she signified to their lordships to be seated. There was still a breathless silence. As the queen proceeded with her speech, the Premier, Viscount Melbourne, who stood by her side in his rich court dress, holding upright the sword of state, and who was thought to be sometimes a little absent, was observed to follow, or rather anticipate every word by the apparently involuntary movement of his lips, and an occasional inclination of the head from side to side, as though keeping time. Every word that the young queen uttered, every syllable, fell from her in tones that were captivating by their softness and musical sweetness, with the clearest and most beautiful enunciation, while her voice was modulated in the most perfect manner, yet natural, without the slightest shade of affectation. When the royal speech was concluded, an evident and universal feeling of satisfaction seemed to pervade the House, and one of the young men of the diplomatic corps, whose eyes and ears had been riveted to the throne, and who stood near the writer, turned to a friend, exclaiming in a suppressed whisper, while bobbing his head with excitement, parfaitement bien! The writer subsequently heard the young queen announce from the throne, on a similar occasion, her approaching marriage to Prince Albert—a trying moment; yet the enunciation was made with a mixture of real dignity and feminine modesty, composure and timidity, that commanded universal admiration. —Recollections of the English and French Courts.

In what case is it absolutely impossible to be slow and sure?—In the case of a watch.

Rev. Dr. Miner, of Belvidere, Illinois, has had the happiness of receiving from Mrs. Lincoln an elegant family Bible. It was the last present ever received by President Lincoln, having been given to him by the colored people of the South a short time previous to his death. There was a strong friendship between Mr. Lincoln and Dr. Miner; hence the incident.

Safes, Vaults, etc.

The recent bank robbery at Louisville, Kentucky, discloses the fact that certain Safes are the most unsafe things in the world. Rascals now-a-days are so shrewd that it requires the utmost skill and ingenuity of modern mechanics to construct a Safe or Bank Vault which will resist the tools of burglars. The Louisville Courier-Journal, of March 12th, says:

"A large number of business men and bankers of Louisville have visited the scene of the recent bank burglary, and have examined the Safe which proved unfaithful to its trust, and the general opinion expressed was that the burglars would have received no reward if the bolt-work had been properly secured; that the fastenings were not of sufficient strength to resist the force of the powder. This should prove a valuable lesson to our bankers and business men, as it is a well authenticated fact that Hall's Fire and Burglar-proof Safes can not be opened."

The branch office of Hall's Safe and Lock Company is at 537 Market Street, San Francisco, where a circular can be seen, showing by a diagram how the robbery was committed. Parties can obtain these circulars by mail.

When we were at the office a few days ago, we noticed an immense Bank Safe, which was to be sent to Eureka, for the use of the Humboldt Bank. On inquiry, we learned that the price was $1,600. The outer part is made fire-proof, and has the usual huge doors. Then there is another set of doors made burglar-proof. These are constructed on an ingenious plan of dove-tailing, so that any attempt to force them by powder or iron bars is useless. Within is another set of doors constructed on the same plan. Besides the patent on the dove-tailing, this Company has a patent on a Lock, which makes the whole combination one of the safest things in the world. They have supplied Safes to banks in San Francisco, Sacramento, Stockton, San Jose, Napa, Petaluma, and other places. They are now making two immense burglar-proof Safes and a Vault for the First National Bank of Portland, Oregon. Besides these Bank Safes, they have a full assortment for merchants, ranging from $80 upward, according to size, etc. Catalogues sent on application.
